

NATO Must Widen Role —Kennedy

PARIS (Reuters)—President Kennedy, in his first speech to the NATO permanent council, called on the 15-nation alliance Thursday to expand its influence throughout the world.

He also reaffirmed American defence commitments, saying the United States is "totally involved" in the destiny of Western Europe.

U.S. 'COMMITTED'

NATO and world defence problems were covered by Kennedy and President de Gaulle during more than three hours of talks in two sessions Thursday—the second day of the American president's state visit to France.

In his speech Kennedy restated the United States' "strong commitment" to the defence of Western Europe.

'MORE INTIMATE'

"We believe it vital to the security of the United States and intend to honor our commitments."

"We want to see this association become more intimate. We want to see it play an expanded and greater part throughout the world."

ALLIANCE LAUDED

Kennedy called for "new life" to be given to the Atlantic alliance which he described as forming the most powerful group of people in the world.

It was necessary to consider the changes which have taken place since NATO was set up as an anti-Communist alliance and think of other areas in the world where increased pressures were being brought to bear.

PLEDGE OFFERED

Although Kennedy, in his talks with de Gaulle, did not approve the French president's bid for a three-power strategy board, U.S. officials said de Gaulle probably would get the substance of his request without the formation of a new organizational setup.

Kennedy's advisers were prepared for de Gaulle to ask for a stronger voice in world affairs and had been working on the problem for several days. U.S. officials said what Kennedy offered was a pledge to consult closely before taking major action anywhere on matters involving the East-West struggle.

What de Gaulle did not get was complete acceptance of

LOGGERS, FIRMS SETTLE WITHOUT PAY INCREASE

Health, Welfare Cover Promised

VANCOUVER (CP)—Representatives of 150 British Columbia coast logging firms and 28,000 woodworkers agreed Thursday on proposed terms for a new contract which would introduce industry-wide health and welfare coverage, but contain no general pay increase.

The proposed one-year agreement would leave the present $1.92 basic hourly wage unchanged except for firemen and engineers, who would receive increases ranging from 4 1/2 to 10 cents an hour.

BREAKTHROUGH

President Joe Morris of International Woodworkers of America (IWA) described the proposed agreement as "a major breakthrough."

He said the union bargaining committee would recommend that the men accept the proposals in a ballot which will be held at the various coast logging centres between now and June 17.

150 COMPANIES

Representatives of Forest Industrial Relations said they would recommend acceptance to the 150 member companies involved.

The industry-wide health and welfare plan would provide for medical services during layoffs, a weekly indemnity and life insurance as well as accidental death and unemployment insurance, a union statement said.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES

It would be administered by a board of trustees and premiums would be borne equally by employer and employee.

The proposed agreement also would provide for an extra paid holiday, at Easter in logging camps and Boxing Day in manufacturing plants. Employment of casual workers would be confined to weekends and preference would be given to laid-off regular employees.

Other features include new procedure for fixing rates for new and revised jobs, revised arbitration procedure and provision for promotion within the bargaining unit.

The proposed health and welfare plan provisions make membership a condition of employment. Coverage for medical services would be provided for a period of up to six months during unemployment, depending on seniority.

JUNE 14

The present agreement, negotiated during a 10-week strike two years ago, expires June 14. The strike resulted in a 20-cent increase in the hourly wage over the two-year contract period.

De Gaulle Reassured On West Berlin Issue

By BOBIS MIRKEV
(Canadian Press)

The Paris meeting between President Kennedy and President de Gaulle may have a greater effect on the future of the Western alliance than at first appears.

The first encounter of the two presidents was on a most cordial note and apparently produced agreement on the West Berlin issue which may come up at talks between Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev in Vienna this weekend.

French anxiety that the Russians may launch a new move against the Western position in Berlin is behind Kennedy's stand — meant to leave no doubt in Khrushchev's mind about the determination of the Western powers to defend their interests in that city.

The United States president reinforced the Western stand by promising that American troops will remain in Europe as long as they are required, ready to meet any threat with whatever response is needed.

This promise should make the understanding between de Gaulle and Kennedy a little clearer. A possible U.S. decision to withdraw its troops rather than risk a nuclear war has been partly responsible for de Gaulle's insistence on providing France with her own atomic striking force.

TRICKY PROBLEM

But the agreement on Berlin and the American promise to keep its force in Europe were among the less touchy items of business. A more tricky problem is the one that divides de Gaulle's France from her Western allies.

It will be difficult to make NATO more effective unless France can be persuaded to play a more cooperative role in the alliance. France is the chief force in the way of a fully inter-dependent NATO.

Attitude than Americans on trade with Russia.

"You people have one point of view, we have another. This is a matter of different points of view," said Mr. Anderson.

The Seattle firms turned down a $150,000 order for six of the latest type of automatic lumber-sorting machines because they would go to Russia.

The presidents of the two companies said Russia was trying to buy "orth American technical know-how in building the world's largest automated sawmill" and "we will have no part in handing this advantage to our sworn enemy."

They said the Russians are 20 years behind the new lumber-handling techniques recently developed and put into operation in Washington state.

Gordon B. Anderson of Puget Sound Fabricators, Inc., said his firm was approached last Friday by representatives of Yarrows and the Preston Woodworking Machinery Company Ltd., of Preston, Ont., with the Preston firm "originating" the order.

"Yarrows was a party to the situation like we were" in that they were not the originators of the deal but would merely do sub-contracting, said Mr. Anderson.

The automated sawmill, costing millions of dollars, would be capable of handling 1,500,000 board feet a day, he said, adding that he understands Canadians may have a different at-

Fleming, Nowlan to Air Tariff Bill in Senate

Special to the Colonist

OTTAWA — Finance Minister Donald Fleming and Minister of National Revenue George Nowlan are scheduled to appear before the Senate banking and commerce committee next week to explain the government's Customs Tariff Bill.

The delay in the passage of the bill through the House and the Senate has contributed to the delay in the government introducing its budget, a government spokesman said Thursday.

NOWLAN ILL

The Senate, after hearing representatives from the Canadian Exporters' Association, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and the Canadian Electrical Manufacturers' Association, adjourned its committee yesterday until next Wednesday. It is understood this was done at the request of the government so that Mr. Fleming and Mr. Nowlan could appear.

Mr. Nowlan has been ill in hospital suffering from a heart attack. There is some doubt that he will have recovered sufficiently to appear before the Senate committee next week.

MOVE UNLIKELY

It now appears unlikely that the budget will be introduced next week. There have been persistent reports that it would be brought down on either June 6 or June 8.

On at least two occasions Mr. Fleming has suggested in the House that it would be improper to introduce his new budget before the pre-Christmas baby budget was approved by the Commons and a Senate. However, government

Red Tale Repeated

LONDON (Reuters)—Moscow radio presented a special program on Britain for Russian children Thursday. It said Britain is "a capitalist world, where all wealth created by the people goes into the pockets of millionaires."

spokesmen said Thursday that there was no legal reason why the budget could not be introduced before all provisions of the baby budget were approved by both Houses.

SECOND READING

But it is understood that the government is reluctant to introduce the main budget until the Customs Tariff Bill has at least been passed out of the Senate banking and commerce committee. It has received second reading in the Senate.

Last month in the House Mr. Fleming denied there had been any delay in bringing down his main budget. He noted that the last budget had not yet passed all phases of the parliamentary procedure.

This was a reference to the Customs and Tariff Bill. The next day in the House Mr. Fleming in reply to another Opposition question said he did not know of any precedent for an Opposition asking for the introduction of a budget when there was one measure of the previous budget still waiting final enactment.

Engineers Find Solution To Salmon-Power Problem

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia can have both fish and power from its fast-flowing river systems, the Engineering Institute of Canada was told yesterday.

Papers presented at the institute's annual meeting indicated that the baffling problem of building power dams and at the same time allowing salmon to get to their spawning grounds, has at last reached a stage of solution.

INCREASE KEEN

The papers indicated, too, that with proper measures the salmon yield can be substantially increased. At the same time, continued and increased research was urged.

NO DOUBT

There is no doubt, Mr. Gwyther said, that we now can produce salmon species in great quantities, jointly with other resource values, and with economy.

Mr. Gwyther's paper went at length into the problems of fish propagation. Rearing capacities of natural and impounded lakes should be utilized by artificial fertilization and incubation of eggs to give a yield far in excess of that from natural spawning grounds.

SOCKEYE YIELD SEEN

Taking as an example the clearwater watershed, a tributary of the North Thompson River, where no sockeye now exists, Mr. Gwyther estimated a possible yearly sockeye value to fishermen of $22,000,000 which with estimated power value, would give the watershed a total economic value of some $52,000,000 annually.

Another paper presented yesterday while less immediately optimistic, stated:

"It is very likely that further research will show that the Fraser and other rivers in British Columbia can be developed for multi-purposes."

CONCEPTS REVERSED

This paper, by J. F. Muir and Eugen Ruus of the University of B.C.'s civil engineering department, added: "Recent research has caused a drastic revision of concepts that have prevailed during the last 30 years on the fish passage problem, especially on the exhaustion of adult fish caused by steepness and height of ladders."

"It now appears that fish passage through ladders can be made relatively easy."

It added: "Many British Columbia power sites can be developed to produce hydro-electric energy at costs a kilowatt hour substantially less than the cost of atomic energy."

Val Gwyther, Vancouver consulting engineer, stated:

"The present policy of retardation of power development in a watershed, due to our inability to produce the answer to beneficial fish migration, is in the past, and these watersheds now are open to development of both fish and power."

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

KNIGHTS used to ride off to the Holy Land armed with a sword and a lance.

Today's crusaders ride to the underdeveloped countries by plane, ship and truck. Their weapons are slide rules, books and ideas.

This modern crusade to free mankind from poverty and ignorance is one of the great adventures of our time. The other is space travel. These are not adventures in which everybody can take part. Only a few people will ride through space in rocket ships, and they must be tough, adaptable and clever.

A larger number will claim a share in the other great enterprise of the 20th century, the war against poverty. Many young people of the West are catching the spirit of this cause, and are enrolling in its ranks.

They must train for the campaign. They can't merely drift to Asia and Africa as a zealous rabble of do-gooders. Those areas need technicians, engineers, scientists, teachers and specialists of many kinds.

The need is for educated men and women. Some of them will enrol in the "Peace Corps" organized by nations of the West; others will join the service of foreign governments.

All of them will work hard in faraway places, building dams, teaching peasant farmers how to use new tools and methods, bringing language and numbers to illiterate millions. Many of these peace soldiers will live in smelly and uncomfortable houses. They will be chewed by fleas and bugs. They won't make much money.

But they will earn something that money can't buy: the feeling of being useful. When a man has that feeling, nothing else matters. But if he fails to attain it—or, having attained it, he loses it again—he is poorer than any peasant scratching for life in the Asian earth.

The feeling of being useful is none too common in the pampered West. But more and more people are going in search of it.

There is a lot of talk about the decay of the West, and in particular about its young people. Aimless, flabby, weak, some critics declare—talking in generalities, as fuzzy-minded people do.

Some of these things are correct. You may look out your window and see a youth in a black leather jacket reel down the street with a stomachful of beer.

But other young people at the same moment are sailing for Africa to teach in jungle schools.

The boy in the black leather jacket might be going there himself, tomorrow.

People's Debts Deeper Than One Year Ago

OTTAWA (CP)—Money owed to finance companies at the end of March this year was $1,158,000,000, down from $1,165,300,000 at the end of February, and up 1.5 per cent from $1,141,000,000 at the end of March last year, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday.

Balances outstanding on consumer goods at the end of March were $736,100,000, compared with $793,900,000 a month earlier and $790,400,000 a year earlier.

March balances on commercial goods were $371,900,000, compared with $371,400,000 at the end of February and $350,700,000 at the end of March, 1960.

Your Good Health

Hot Water from Old Boiler Should Not Prove Harmful

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, MD

"Dear Dr. Molner: I live in quite an old hotel and have been using the hot water tap to make instant coffee or tea. My friends claim using the hot water from the tap is not good for one, due to the fact that the hotel is so old evidently the hot water tanks are old. They claim the water should be boiled.—Miss E."

There is no reason why you should worry. An old boiler is no health hazard. No matter how old it is, nothing gets in it except water! Ignore your friends' claims. As proof I offer this—you've been using the hot water and it hasn't hurt you. It won't.

Dear Dr. Molner: Some time ago I noticed a letter from a woman whose husband was troubled by bad foot odor. My husband had this trouble. He used to bathe his feet every day, put on clean boiled socks every morning, and tried so many remedies, even the strong prescription of the army doctor in 1908.

"He didn't cure it until 1911 when a man he worked with advised that he powder his feet every day with boric acid. It was a permanent cure.—A.P."

This letter is interesting in several ways. The problem of odor can be extremely stubborn at times, no matter how clean the person is in the soap-and-water sense.

This is because the trouble often stems in large part from the presence and activity of bacteria which, while they may

Delay Requested In Packers Case

WINNIPEG (CP)—Toronto businessmen Hugh Paton and D. Hubert Cox asked Thursday for a postponement of their trial on charges of conspiracy to steal $460,000 from Brandon Packers Limited.

The request came in Court of Queen's Bench during a hearing of an application by the two men to quash the order committing them for trial.

RULING TODAY

Mr. Justice A. M. Monnin is expected to rule on the twin applications today after the hearing resumes.

Harry Monk, counsel for Cox, said more time was needed to prepare a case.

He also argued that a writ empowering the empanelling of a jury was issued in Brandon May 15, and under the criminal code the trial cannot be held within 30 days of this date.

The trial is scheduled for Monday.

Quit Federal Job Secessionist Urged

OTTAWA (CP)—Dr. Marcel Chaput, a defence research board scientist who believes Quebec should break away from Canada, has received a strong suggestion that he quit his job.

The suggestion came Thursday from Dr. J. E. Keyston, vice-chairman of the research board and acting chairman in the absence of Dr. A. H. Zimmerman, who is in England.

Dr. Chaput, 42, director of Le Rassemblement pour l'Indépendance Nationale, told a Hull, Que., audience Wednesday night that if the movement continues to expand at its present rate, Quebec will secede from Confederation before Canada's 100th anniversary in 1967.

Dr. Keyston said: "I regard it as morally and ethically inconsistent that anyone should publicly urge the disruption of the federal government while continuing to be employed by the government and that the association with the Defence Research Board of anyone guilty of such inconsistency is damaging to the board's reputation."

He said Dr. Chaput has been informed of the board's view.

Agriculture Act Gets Solid Vote

OTTAWA (UPD)—The Commons gave third and final reading Wednesday to the government's Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act by a vote of 182 to 0.

Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton, winding up a marathon debate on the measure, called it "one of the most significant in the history of Canadian agricultural legislation."

Jackie Dresses To Please Paris

PARIS (UPI)—Last night the Kennedys were guests of President de Gaulle at a dazzling dinner and ballet performance at the Palace of Versailles.

Mrs. Kennedy, who has won the heart of Paris with her charm, her good looks and her clothes sense, won new friends by deciding to wear a Paris creation, by Givenchy, to the Versailles gala. It was a white gown with matching white coat.

CHANGED MIND

The first lady had planned an all-American wardrobe for the three-day state visit to France, but in her luggage was a new gown delivered to her in Washington by the Parisian designer. It was intended for occasional wear at private parties.

Aides said Mrs. Kennedy conceived the idea of wearing the Givenchy creation at Versailles as one small way of repaying France for its hospitality.

Before the dinner, Mrs. Kennedy held an informal champagne-and-cookies reception at the U.S. Embassy residence for the ladies of the press in Paris because she did not think she could handle a full-scale news conference.

But she was wrong. She was as big a success with the news women as with the rest of Paris.

Emergency Declared After Zanzibar Riots

Ship Hoists New Flag To Carry Grain to Reds

LONDON (Reuters)—A most was completed, the Chinese agent wrote to the London brokers who arranged the charter, telling them that as the Chinese government had issued a decree terminating economic and trading relations with South Africa, it was feared the charter would be void.

The Chinese agents then asked if arrangements could be made to change the flag and port of registry of the ship for the two voyages.

Manglia said it was agreed after consultation with the South African owners to change the port of registry from Cape Town to London and to fly the Red Ensign instead of the South African flag—only for the duration of the charter.

Named Head of Armed Forces

Trujillo's Playboy Son Takes Over

CIUDAD TRUJILLO (UPI)—Rafael Trujillo Jr., playboy son of assassinated dictator Rafael Trujillo, was named head of the armed forces yesterday.

His appointment by figurehead president Joaquin Balaguer made the younger Trujillo the effective ruling power of the Dominican Republic.

STILL AT LARGE

The 32-year-old former escort of Hollywood actress Zsa Zsa Gabor immediately issued a proclamation admitting the assassins of his father were still at large and appealing for unity and order.

The government communique did not say Trujillo was succeeding his father, who ruled this Caribbean island nation for 31 years. But the elder Trujillo occupied no official government post in the final years of his rule, exercising power as "benefactor of the nation" through his political machine.

IN PARIS

The new commander, who goes by the nickname of Ramfis, was in Paris for the polo season when word reached him of his father's fatal gun duel Tuesday night on a highway near this capital city. He and his brother Radhames chartered a jetliner and rushed back home.

The younger Trujillo was named by President Balaguer and the ruling council. Both were appointed to office by his father.

His proclamation made these points:

All Dominican citizens must continue their present activities.

The assassins must be found and punished.

All laws promulgated by the assassinated dictator must be obeyed.

"Our present international relations must be maintained, with no favors to either the Communist or anti-Communist nations."

Earlier, the armed forces described the death of the elder Trujillo. He tried to shoot his way out of an ambush with a pistol but was shot and killed by at least six men in his car on a lonely highway outside this city, the armed forces said.

Police Deny Charge

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—A four-day hearing on charges of police refusing to protect "Freedom Riders" from a mob ended Thursday with an emphatic denial from Montgomery's police commissioner.

U.S. District Judge Frank Johnson declined to say immediately whether he will issue a no-violence injunction against Montgomery police and continue in effect a similar existing order against the Ku Klux Klan.

DECISION TODAY

Johnson is expected to make his decision known today.

In other racial developments, white and Negro "Freedom Riders" began a hunger strike in the city and county jails at Jackson, Miss. One "Rider" said they will fast until a federal court order is issued to halt bus segregation throughout the South.

NO EXTRA POLICE

At the hearing, Commissioner L. B. Sullivan testified no extra police were assigned to the Greyhound bus station in Montgomery May 20 before a "Freedom Rider" bus arrived because "there was no indication that there would be trouble."

LIFE THREATENED

Sullivan, who said his life and the lives of his family have been threatened since the riot at the bus terminal, told the court he had instructed police to keep a constant check on the depot and break up any crowds which congregated.

Testing His Quality

IT IS not by idle chance that Mrs. Kennedy is accompanying her youthful husband, "JFK," on his trip to Europe. The wives of heads of state, and especially if they are attractive and good to look at, back up the diplomatic nature of the visit. As has been apparent in Paris, and no doubt will be repeated in Vienna, Mrs. Kennedy has won many hearts by her buoyant charm and grace.

That is no drawback to the mission of the U.S. president, but instead an asset in cementing high-level relations. Mr. Kennedy will be among peoples friendly to his country, but even so the political climate is thereby enhanced. It will be remembered also that when she accompanied her husband to the United States last year Mrs. Khrushchev won much respect for the quiet dignity of her manner and obvious human warmth.

President Kennedy needs more than public acclaim to sustain him as he meets Premier Khrushchev on Saturday, but the welcome given him and Mrs. Kennedy nevertheless carries its own connotations; nor will these be lost on the Soviet premier. The temper of nations is a factor to be calculated in the strategic moves of the cold war.

In meeting Mr. Khrushchev so soon after entering the White House the U.S. president is departing from his earlier decision not to indulge in premature foreign travel. That he has reversed himself is an indication of the sense of urgency which impels him to meet the Soviet dictator face to face and gain direct understanding of what he is up against as the leader of the Western world.

For all the spectacular aspects of the meeting and the spotlight that marks it nothing sensational should be expected from it. The cold war isn't going to end overnight because Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Khrushchev sit down at the same table and discuss their differences.

These are many and varied. They cover the wide range where the interests of Soviet communism and Western democracy clash. They include the problems of Laos, Berlin, Africa, Cuba, Korea—in fact the whole world for no area is safe from the threat of Communist penetration—and the pressing nature of disarmament negotiation and its related disagreements.

Mr. Kennedy will not leave Vienna with the answer to all these questions nor for that matter will Mr. Khrushchev. But the president will have the invaluable experience of sizing his man up and matching his diplomatic skill against a master of the art. No immediate concrete benefit may seem to result from this Vienna meeting but the U.S. president is bound to return home fortified by this direct contact and more aware than ever of the tasks of statesmanship that lie before him.

The youthful American president has yet to prove his wisdom on the high levels of international affairs, but patently he does not lack the mental courage demanded of the holder of his eminent position as a leader of the free world. Vienna is a test of his quality, and he has gone to meet the challenge with confidence.

Merit in Proposal

AS LONG as Victoria contractors are given full opportunity to compete with a Vancouver company in its proposal to provide the city with two downtown parking garages on a lease-purchase basis, the idea appears to have considerable merit and no serious flaws.

The off-street parking is needed—on that there can hardly be disagreement—and even from the least optimistic viewpoint, the building of the two garages with spaces for a total of 600 cars, while not curing all of the ailments of Victoria's downtown shopping and business district, would be a significant step forward in relieving parking and traffic congestion.

Under the 20-year lease-purchase plan, the builder would face no risk, because it is inconceivable that the city would default. The risk would be taken by the city, but it would seem almost negligible.

Experiences elsewhere have generally been that downtown parking garages pay their own way or operate at a profit. With the downtown curb-parking fee soon to become 10 cents an hour and the garages charging the same rate, it seems reasonable to expect that the garage revenue would be sufficient to meet most, if not all, of the lease payments.

But if this were not the case, city council in any event has planned to spend on off-street parking the additional revenue from curb-parking when the meter fee is raised. Beyond this, the parking garages would become the property of the city in 20 years, and there is no cause to think that by that time they would have become less valuable assets.

Once committed, of course, the city could not consider a return to cheaper or free parking on downtown streets. It is unlikely, however, that a future council would ever want thus to choke the business area of Victoria.

Welcome Serpent

EVERY good Victorian, particularly in the balmy season which is now beginning, is duty-bound to admit if not to brag about the existence of Cadborosaurus. Caddy, despite occasional attempts by Mainlanders and Up-Islanders to claim him, has remained Victoria's own private sea serpent through the years.

He may disappear for long periods. His current absence has been particularly long, possibly indicating outrage at certain swashbuckling misrepresentations by the Publicity Bureau. But it is always to Victoria waters that he comes home.

This being the case, Victoria can only be relieved and glad that instead of pressing the claim to joint ownership of Caddy, the Island north of the Malahat has found a serpent of its own in Cowichan Lake; a lesser monster, of course, but possessed nevertheless of "two glaring eyes" in the best tradition.

As in the case of Cadborosaurus, Ogopogo, the Loch Ness Monster and other reputable and enduring sea and lake serpents, which have been seen by sane and sober persons but never, for some reason, clearly photographed, the Cowichan Lake one has yet to present himself to the lens of a camera.

As usual, there are skeptics, who suggest that this creature is only an enormous sturgeon, and three Victoria skindivers with flashlights and underwater cameras will try to find him this weekend to obtain pictures.

We wish them happy hunting, a lot of fun—and no mystery-ending success whatever.

Thinking Aloud

"... of them, and ships, and sailing past..."

By TOM TAYLOR

THERE is an editorial on this page this morning about Cadborosaurus—Caddy to his familiars of this area—written in the whimsical vein with which one discusses such exotic creatures as sea serpents. This is the safety approach which keeps an open mind on the subject and neither scoffs nor admits.

Sea serpents have been much-talked-of for so long that people hesitate to affirm a belief in them lest they be thought naïve, although the persistence of their reported appearances in various parts of the world is an old story. It would be too much, surely, to dismiss as hallucinations all the sightings claimed by sailors, not to speak of land-based observers, through the centuries.

But being mentally from Missouri we affect a scepticism we may not actually feel. The mysteries of the earth and the oceans are not all unlocked yet and who knows what remains to be discovered. I am hopeful for instance that when the first spacemen land on the moon they bring back, alive if possible, some creatures found to be living there.

If only to set us back a peg.

Patently however sea serpents are shy, whatever else they may be. The infrequency of their appearances suggests that either they much prefer the depths of their own habitat, they come up to the surface only by chance, or they are as elusive in their habits as Mr. Bennett.

Our own prize specimen, for example, affectionately referred to and claimed by this morning's editorial, has been on an inordinately long vacation. One hesitates to think he has emigrated, for where else could he find such harmonious surroundings, but certainly it is high time he came back to titillate us afresh.

And, one likes to hope, he still long enough to be properly photographed. It is one of the unfortunate circumstances that in these days of extreme camera consciousness, sea serpents show a diabolical instinct for appearing when the observer has dropped his camera, or doesn't have one.

Perhaps of course they possess the wisdom of the ages; come the day when one is accepted as a fact beyond all doubt he will be hunted and caught, given chloroform and then stuffed.

No self-respecting sea serpent could be expected to run unnecessary risks, therefore.

Coincidentally I have been reading a piece about one particular sea serpent, neither whimsical nor scoffing but, as the headline in the London Observer puts it, a plain "Case for the Monster."

The monster in this instance is that reportedly resident in Loch Ness, about which most of the world has heard. Unlike Cadborosaurus the dignity of a name has never yet been conferred on him, which seems rather unjust. He may be a harmless monster!

But for all the jokes there is serious thought he is neither myth nor crab nor any other known creature. The review of the book in question indicates what few realize, that while sightings of the monster have been common in the past few decades there is a continuous record going back to the 1870s, and even more remote records going back to a monkish manuscript of 700 A.D.

It would perhaps be stranger than the monster himself if all such data were of no validity whatever.

The thesis is advanced that the Loch Ness Monster was trapped in what is now a comparative puddle as the seas receded during past aeons, and that he is a relic of an ancient long-necked reptile, plesiosaurus. The Ogopogo and the specimen supposedly in Lake Winnipegows will have been similarly caught napping, but this does not account for Caddy. He must be a primitive example of the original species still going strong.

What is claimed, moreover, is that professional zoologists have not given sea serpents the attention they deserve, and that by serious investigation the reality of the Loch Ness Monster might well be established.

Cadborosaurus is a more difficult kettle of fish. If fish a sea-serpent be, for he has never been trapped and is free to roam. And currently his roving seems to have taken him afar.

Report From Germany

Repercussions of Trial

By ERNEST WAENGLER, from Bonn
Telegram News Service

PERHAPS the most notable effect of the Eichmann trial has been the renewed interest in the prosecution of Nazi criminals within Germany. Not only has there been a flood of new arrests and trials of major and minor participants in atrocities, but hardly a week passes without new figures on past work in this field being published by the government.

On the whole, there are achieving the purpose of convincing the German public that much has been done—and is being done—by Germany to cleanse its own house.

The previous official figure of 80,000 persons who committed crimes of violence, mostly against Jews, has now been downgraded to between 25,000 and 30,000. The earlier figure, the latest release says, was based on "an erroneous computation." This, however, is not universally accepted.

Leaders of German Jewish communities assert that the number must have been closer to 200,000. The government estimate that about 25 per cent of the guilty have since died is generally regarded as correct.

Since the end of the war, there have been investigations against 24,322 persons accused of Nazi crimes, about half conducted by Allied and half by German authorities. In nearly half of these cases, charges were laid. About 11,000 were convicted (5,000 by the Allies and 6,000 by the Germans) and of these 8,000 were sentenced to death and executed.

All this would seem to indicate that somewhere between 10,000 and 100,000 active participants in atrocities are still undiscovered and at large, possibly half of them living outside Germany.

Communist East Germany is trying to use the Eichmann trial for its own political ends, so far without much success.

A spokesman for the East German government asserted in Jerusalem that West German Secretary of State Globke was strongly implicated in the persecution of Jews under Hitler. In answer to this, official Bonn sources have now submitted documents to prove that while Globke did collaborate in the infamous Nuremberg Laws, he tried to mitigate their effects and saved several Jews through personal intervention.

Though sworn statements to this effect from prominent Catholic and even Jewish sources have now been published, most German Jews are openly dubious ("Who is he exactly did he save?" they ask).

Faulty Figures

From The Telegram, Toronto

STATISTICS, the English writer G. K. Chesterton once said, should be used as a drunkard uses a lamp post—for support and not for illumination. But there are times when the statistical lamp post provides neither support nor illumination. And an example of this is the monthly percentage figure, expressing the rate of unemployment, which is issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

This widely-quoted figure does no justice to the economy's true performance. It does not take into account the wide seasonal fluctuations in employment in Canada. Nor is it in line with statistical practice elsewhere—a busy trap that is revealed when comparisons are made with unemployment rates in other countries.

The latest to fall into this trap is a weekly news magazine which compares an unemployment rate of 11.1 per cent for Canada with a figure of 6.8 per cent for the U.S. Not only do these percentages refer to different months, but they are not even drawn up on a comparable basis, since the U.S. figure (unlike the Canadian) takes seasonal factors into consideration. Plotted on the same basis, the Canadian unemployment rate would be below eight per cent.

The minister of labor should look into the source of this statistical muddle.

There is much speculation about the political future of Willy Brandt, the immensely popular mayor of West Berlin and Social Democrat candidate for the chancellorship in next September's elections.

Since even Social Democrats can see no chance of winning a majority, Brandt will almost certainly keep his Berlin job. However, in 1962 the Berlin city government will be contested in a local election and it is considered entirely possible that Brandt will lose in the aftermath of his defeat at the national polls. As a twice-defeated candidate, his chances for a comeback would be greatly dimmed, although even his opponents concede that his permanent disappearance from the German political scene would be a great loss to the country.

Victoria's Garden Entrance

Tourist Attraction in Danger

By ANTHONY H. ROBERTS,
Director, Capital Region Planning Board

VICTORIA is a stately home built on the waterfront with a beautiful garden behind it. This garden of the Saanich Peninsula, once the tradesman's entrance, is rapidly becoming the front yard through which most visitors must pass. Here they will get their first impressions of the region and its people.

At one time almost all the visitors sailed into a majestic welcome from the Parliament Buildings and the Empress Hotel and at an even earlier date they were met by the gracious facades still to be seen on a now faded Ward Street. Since millions of Germans who were expelled from these regions now live in West Germany they represent a solid voting bloc, no party can afford to say that the territories can be written off as the price for reunification.

Neither does any party want to show too much determination about regaining the land beyond the Oder-Neisse for fear of being accused of warmongering and obstructing the slim chance of a negotiated all-German peace treaty.

In talking to various party and government officials on this subject one finds as many different viewpoints as persons questioned. The only thing common is a realization that no solution will be found for many years to come.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

INTO the chair car, from the far end, came a distinguished Canadian on his way to the dining car. In the second chair from the door sat a cabinet minister. The distinguished Canadian greeted the cabinet minister heartily, shook hands, and passed on.

Half way down the car, he paused at a chair and waited for its occupant to look up from the paper he was reading. The man reading was a rather homely specimen, with thinning grey hair, a red nose and a dazed air. Finally he looked up and struggled awkwardly to greet the distinguished Canadian with a clumsy hand-shake. The distinguished Canadian sat himself on the arm of the chair, and for a good half hour devoted his interest and attention to the undistinguished-looking man. Then the two of them went on in to the dining car together.

After dinner, the distinguished Canadian, whom I have known since our boyhood, borrowed a pipeful of tobacco from me, knowing I always have good tobacco.

"How come," I asked him, "you give the cabinet minister the brushoff, and made such a fuss over the man with the red nose?"

"Well, heck," said the distinguished Canadian, "the next election, the cabinet minister may be a nobody again. But don't you know who that other chap is? He's the greatest living authority on the virus diseases of cattle!"

There is a need to safeguard the rural parts of the Saanich Peninsula because new major roads and water mains bring with them pressures for premature and indiscriminate subdivision.

It will be up to the people and municipal councils of the rural areas to protect their own interests by seeing that new subdivision only takes place in compact selected locations. The proposal to preserve the countryside does not mean a prohibition on the building of new homes but rather the encouragement of building in the right places only.

Protection of our surroundings for ourselves, our children and our visitors, should not be just a negative policy. With preservation should go improvement.

Improvement is needed in the rural communities and also in the provision of more recreational facilities. The Regional Plan proposals for rural and coastal parks linked by a marine drive are examples of positive measures for improvement. In no other urban areas in Canada will you find as many houses with beautiful gardens. The residents of Victoria and all the other municipalities of the Saanich Peninsula are rightly proud of their front yards.

If the community as a whole could show a similar concern for its own bigger front yard it would ensure that this region would remain a pleasant place for residents and visitor alike.

Much effort has already been made to safeguard and improve the region. The Capital Improvement District Commission has done valuable work on streets and parks, and Victoria, Esquimalt, Oak Bay and Saanich regulate advertising signs. Most of the municipalities have subdivision and zoning controls which can guide the right type of development to the right places.

The Capital Region Planning Board has, in its Regional Plan and by other means, warned of the dangers of sprawl and has shown how it can be avoided. It has been proved that the whole of the Saanich Peninsula cannot be a solid urban area. To place for residents and visitor do so it would have to increase area is dependent upon its good looks for success in the tourist business.

Victoria's natural setting is a fragile fabric of fields and woods, bays and hills, needing resolute protection. Vancouver's scenic backdrop of impenetrable mountains needs far less protection.

Residents of this region are conscious of their urban environment as witness the recent proposal to remove the cluster lights. They may not be so concerned as to what happens to their rural surroundings.

It is not an easy task to recognize the gradual eroding of the countryside because, unlike the removal of lights, it may take five or ten years before it is obvious that a region has been spoiled.

When the warning is not heeded the result is sky-high taxes with little corresponding benefit except for the small minority who have sold out to the subdividers. These standard objections to sprawl but there are two additional reasons why sprawl must be avoided. The narrow, twenty-mile Saanich Peninsula is especially vulnerable and this

Fire Menace

I see that Parliament is passing a law regarding golfballs and I think no good citizen will object. But if such an effort is on the tape why not tackle a problem 50 times more serious and which will not be difficult to enforce.

The cigaret fire menace is a far worse evil. Tailor-made cigarets burn like a fuse when thrown away by careless smokers and our fire loss annually is terrific in terms of human life, property damage and speaking as a national problem, the destruction of our forests. . . . If a golfball law why not a law insisting that the cigaret-makers turn out a cigaret that will go out when laid down or thrown away: put it up to them, no cure no sale. . . .

Under Control

In my recent letter, appearing in your columns, concerning the rats in Beacon Hill Park, I did not wish to cast any reflection on the conduct of the Victoria health department in dealing with such matters, but to merely report what I had actually seen there.

Last year, the underbrush was cleared away on the islands, and the rock-borders were repainted; this probably disturbed the rats and drove them out into the open. However, in speaking with a member of the health department, I was informed that they had the rat-problem pretty well under control in the park, as well as in other sections of the city.

Circus

Once again the circus is coming to Victoria, and on behalf of the Victoria Branch of the BCSPCA I would like to bring to the attention of your readers the society's views.

It is our experience that in every circus, no matter how well it is run, there is inevitably a large measure of cruelty inflicted on the poor animals. The trainers may contend that they use only kindness, but the mass of evidence we have on the subject prove that all too often it is the fear of punishment that makes for perfect performances rather than the hope of reward or affection. Added to the actual rigors of training and performances are the miles and miles of being transported from one place to another, cooped up in small cages in all extremes of temperature. If the public would only consider these caged animals for one moment in the way that they consider their own pets, I am sure that the desire to go to a circus would die very quickly. After all, these conglomerations of unfortunate animals are really only a heritage from the Middle Ages and should not be tolerated in this 20th century. . . .

A child cannot understand the cruelty involved and expresses the wish to go because of his inborn love of animals; but how much better it would be to take the child to see animals in their natural surroundings, and teach him to assume the responsibility of looking after his own pet.

A circus depends for its existence on audiences, and it is the aim of this society to educate the public in animal welfare until the disgrace of performing and caged animals is fully realized and no decent person will go to a circus.

SEATTLE—A judge says Louis Dufek can feed the pigeons in a downtown square and let the litter fall where it may.

Dufek, 75, was arrested when a group of merchants complained he threw popcorn around, drawing hundreds of pigeons to the heart of the city.

"If you have the love of God in your heart," Dufek told Municipal Judge Walter McGovern, "you don't want to see a living thing go hungry. I have fed the pigeons for 35 years. Is it so wrong?"

Said the judge: "I fall to see where a gentleman like this can be found guilty."

Dufek left the court, bought a bag of popcorn and returned to the square. The pigeons were waiting.

Plane Crash
Kills Two

CALGARY (CP)—Two RCAF officers were killed Thursday when their single-engine Harvard trainer crashed on the Sarcee Indian Reserve southwest of Calgary.

Their names were withheld by the RCAF pending notification of relatives. The crash occurred about seven miles from the plane's base on the southwest outskirts of Calgary.

The graveyard shift had been shut down since Nov. 4. The dispute is over a company order that the shift start at 11.30 p.m. and continue until 8 a.m. The union said the traditional working hours are from 1 a.m. to 8 a.m.—a six and one-half-hour shift plus 30 minutes for lunch.

A company spokesman said the union was told last week that the shift would only be economical if the full eight hours were worked.

The union said the six and one-half-hour overnight shift has been adhered to on all Lower Mainland mills for the last 10 years. The workers are paid for eight hours work.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Timber tycoon H. R. MacMillan told a joke about Benjamin Franklin Thursday to describe how he felt when a fake dynamite bomb with a spluttering fuse crashed through a window of his house and landed 10 feet from him Wednesday night.

MOCK CORRECT

"It wasn't so much a scare—it would be more correct to say that I was surprised and astonished," said the 75-year-old director and former honorary chairman of MacMillan, Bloedel & Powell River Company.

"You remember the story about Ben Franklin which explains the words 'surprise' and 'astonishment'?"

SURPRISED

"Franklin was in the kitchen with his arm around the cook when his wife walked in on them."

"She took one look and said: 'Benjamin—I'm surprised!'" "Franklin replied: 'No, my dear, I am the one who was surprised. You are astonished!'"

UNEXPLAINED

The reason for the scare remained unexplained. Police refused to comment on whether it might be connected with a recent dispute between top executives of the company. British Columbia's biggest forest firm, and said merely it was "obviously the work of someone with a real or imagined beef."

The fake bomb, made of five round sticks covered with paper with the ends dipped in tar and an eight-inch fuse, was thrown through the window of Mr. MacMillan's brightly-lighted sunroom at about 10 p.m.

HATCHET-MEN

It was accompanied by a note which read:

"Dear Harvey: This should be real. Why do you have to get your hatchet-men to do your dirty work? Another thing, maybe if you smiled (which would be a new experience) life would seem better, but I guess it would hurt. Your many money-grubbing friends."

Police found a shopping bag with tar marks inside at the foot of the window, indicating the dummy bomb was thrown from close range.

A Vancouver newspaper said it was tipped off about the incident half an hour before it happened.

A reporter said a caller who sounded like a young prankster told him on the telephone: "You'd better keep a watch on this one. There's going to be a bomb thrown into H. R. MacMillan's house tonight."

The reporter said he notified police within a matter of minutes, but the department later reported it had no record of notification.

Bankers Take Credit For Rediscount Rate

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

The leaders of the Canadian Chartered Bank, who in their 1960 annual reports lambasted the Bank of Canada and its governor for the violent fluctuations in the bank rediscunt rate, appear to have been successful in rectifying the situation.

At any rate since the beginning of the year the extreme fluctuation in the Bank of Canada rate, which is changed weekly, has been only .48 per cent since the beginning of the year and only .23 per cent since Feb. 23. (3.59 per cent high and 3.11 low).

Last year, the period about which the chartered bank presidents were complaining, the swing was 3.46 per cent (from 5.39 per cent to 1.93 per cent).

CHANGES GRADUAL

Personal Touch Vital

OTTAWA (CPI)—The personal touch tends to mean more in developing trade with Communist countries than it does elsewhere, says Canada's first trade commissioner in Moscow.

STATE SYSTEM
William Van Vliet, appointed last year, says the Soviet state trading system causes this and

"It is the combination of visits by Soviet trade representatives to Canada that will guarantee the progressive development of Canadian trade relations with the Soviet Union."

Mr. Van Vliet writes in the current edition of Foreign Trade, fortnightly journal of the trade and commerce department.

LEADING TRADER

Russia has become a leading world trader whose foreign trade parallels Canada's, he says. About three-quarters goes to the Communist bloc and industrialized western countries take most of the rest "but trade with the underdeveloped countries is increasing rather rapidly."

The current Soviet seven-year plan ending in 1965 calls for a 70-per-cent expansion in trade and the increase for the first two years totals about 25 per cent.

Mr. Van Vliet says it's difficult to say how Canada stands under the three-year Soviet agreement signed last year. Canadian trade figures do not count Russian goods entering Canada from a third country.

Teachers Paid To Train

VANCOUVER (CPI) — A survey by the B.C. School Trustees Association shows that many Commonwealth teachers receive allowances or salaries while training.

New Zealand teacher-trainees are paid salaries while attending teachers college.

Australians receive living allowances and free tuition. In England and Wales they receive allowances based on need.

B.C. students receive government bursaries of $100 to $200, based on need, or government scholarships that pay half the fees of first-class students and a third of the fees of second-class students. Loans ranging from $600 to $2,000, to be repaid at current interest rates, are also available.

Beaten Faces Drew Smirk From Eichmann Says Jew

JERUSALEM (CP) — A Canadian Jew testified at Adolf Eichmann's trial Thursday that the former Nazi officer registered satisfaction when he saw the beaten faces of Jews assaulted by Nazis.

The trial's first Canadian witness, Budapest-born Leslie Gordon, 41, of Montreal, testified he was one of the Jews. It was a dramatic moment when Gordon, a dark-haired real estate broker, and Eichmann faced each other in court.

TRAPPED BY AGENTS

Gordon, who had survived deportation to Poland in 1941, testified that in 1944 he was trapped by Hungarian police agents disguised with Star of David markings.

Along with 15 others he was taken to Budapest's Hotel Majestic, then the headquarters of Nazi SS Lt.-Col. Eichmann, in charge of Jewish affairs for the SS and now on trial here for the wartime murder of Jews.

Gordon said, "I did not and would not answer their questions and was beaten up for three days."

SAW EICHMANN

Later the prisoners were ordered to stand facing a wall.

Gordon said that when an SS man ordered him to turn around he saw Eichmann.

"I could see the satisfaction on his face because of our beaten faces," the witness added.

The witness was asked by Attorney-General Gideon Hausner whether the same man was facing him now.

"Yes," he replied.

'MUCH BETTER'

Hausner asked: "Did he look as he looks now?"

Gordon, his voice husky with emotion, declared: "He looks much better than he should look."

There was bitter laughter in the court room.

When it had subsided, Hausner said firmly: "I am asking you a factual question."

"I am sorry," said Gordon in his halting English. "He was in uniform, younger by 15 or 16 years."

Gordon said he saw Eichmann again after the witness had been taken to a Jewish camp in a leather factory at Csepel Island in the Danube River.

"Eichmann and his men came out expressing their satisfaction at what they had seen of the crowded camp," he said.

Missing Bridge Halts Crack French Train

MOUCHARD, France (Reuters)—Trains on one of France's busiest main lines were delayed when a Briton lost his false teeth.

The man, who preferred to remain anonymous, was using a toilet aboard the Nancy-Dijon express when his false teeth fell out and were flushed onto the track.

He pulled the emergency cord, the express ground to a halt and hundreds of passengers poured out onto the track to search for the missing teeth.

After 10 minutes' delay the search was abandoned.

Laos Talks Total Deadlock

GENEVA (UPI)—The Laos peace conference froze yesterday into a total deadlock that diplomats said could be broken only by President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev at their weekend meetings in Vienna.

The deadlock came on Western insistence that the fighting in Laos must come to a stop before peace talks can be held and on Communist insistence that the conference begin immediate discussion of long-range plans for Laos.

Communist Chinese Foreign Minister Chen Yi underlined the Communist position by issuing a veiled warning that the Laos problem will get worse unless the United States drops its demands for stronger cease-fire controls in Laos.

Communist diplomats, meanwhile, began sending out feelers suggesting that the only solution would be the partition of Laos.

Big Tourist Drive Urged On Canada, U.S., Mexico

Suggestion that Canada, the United States and Mexico join forces to promote more travel to the North American continent was made here yesterday by Elmer Jenkins, director of the American Automobile Association's national touring department.

"Granted that distance is a prime factor on the North American continent, these distances are being whittled away and perhaps it is not too unrealistic now to think about a joint effort to make all of North America just as great a tourist destination as the European continent," he said.

JOINT MEETING
Mr. Jenkins, from Washington, D.C., was addressing a joint meeting of the Victoria Rotary Club and delegates to the convention of the Canadian Automobile Association.

He referred to the successful promotion of the European Travel Commission and the Pacific Area Travel Association for the purpose of attracting more tourists to the continent and the Far East.

MORE INCOME
"Increased leisure time, longer paid vacations, more expendable income, rising economic status and the ever-growing public appetite for travel are factors which are bringing long-distance travel within the means and capabilities of millions of people," he said.

"We are living in an era of revolutionary ideas and overwhelming scientific advances which will have far-reaching effects upon the travel industry," said Mr. Jenkins.

LURING PEOPLE
Highway development in Canada and the U.S. was luring more people to the open road and the AAA estimates 85 per cent of all vacation and recreational travel is by car. "Construction of new highways on both sides of our border will do for automobile travel what the jet has done for air travel," said Mr. Jenkins.

Thetis Watershed Lease Bucked by Nature Club

Thetis Park Nature Sanctuary Association president Ed Lohbrunner said yesterday he is opposed to a city proposal to lease 31 acres of Thetis Lake watershed land for private development. He said the association agrees with Parks Administrator Herbert Warren that the whole Thetis watershed should remain in its natural state. The city has called for tenders for an annual lease on the land which is south of the Trans-Canada Highway and north of the E & N Railway.

OUTDOORS

with Alec Merriman

Bright spot of the fishing picture this week is the arrival of the season's first spring salmon run in north island waters at Bates Beach, where Wednesday night a number of springs up to 17 pounds were weighed into the King Fisherman contest.

This is the run that comes to these waters about this time every year and the fish will get bigger and more plentiful within the next couple of weeks for those who can hit it right. Rex Field plugs and Strip-Tasers are doing the trick.

Hooper Brooks reports the blues arrival this week in Oyster Bay-Shelter Point-Campbell River waters, and are taking the Tom Mack spoons and Pearl Wobblers.

Another fishing highlight is the arrival of the fat bright rainbow trout on the Little Qualicum River, only a few hundred feet from Cameron Lake. This run, which lasts a week or two, provides some of the sportiest river fly fishing on the island.

Otherwise fishing is fair almost anywhere on the island with freshwater fishing rated good in some spots.

There has been a small flurry of heavy springs in Saanich Inlet mixed in with some jacksprings in the four to six-pound range providing light tackle early morning and evening fishing and deep-deep mid-day fishing with Minnow-Tasers the biggest fish-getter. Walter Arden's 27 1/2-pounder, caught near The Boulder, was biggest of the week up until Wednesday night. Goldstream Island, The Boulder, Deep Hole and McKenzie Bay have been the big producers.

John Rose captured the first weekly trophy of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association ladder derby with a 24.6-pounder.

As of yesterday morning the 200-rung ladder derby standings showed him holding the first run, Vic Humphries was second with a 19.12-pounder and Ed Cadillac was third with a 15.13-pounder.

Holding the bottom three rungs were Brian Pilling with a 5.13, A. E. Johnston with a 6.4-pounder and W. Barr with a 7.8-pounder. There were 183 rungs still left to be filled, which means that any fish weighed in at the moment would hit the ladder. The $1 ladder ticket entitles holder to weigh in as many fish as he wants during the 10-week derby which ends July 23.

Victoria waterfront waters are still producing the occasional big spring salmon with early morning and evening fishing the best. Jim Chaplin got three heavyweights at Becher Bay at daybreak Wednesday, but other fishermen had poor luck.

W. Mitchell picked up a 22.4-pounder off Discovery Island on Strip-Taser Wednesday evening.

Cec Burgess and Rod Bayles ran into some blueback fishing in Trincorm Channel, off Thetis Island, at the weekend but reported Porlier Pass was off and the only people getting fish there were fishing deep. Some blues were taken in Nanaimo waters.

Blueback fishing off Mistaken and Ballenas Islands was pretty good at the weekend, but it tended to taper off a little with the extreme tides of the mid-week. Al Wilson says it was good at Qualicum, but also tapered off at midweek. He thought the blues would probably be back in good numbers by the weekend.

Mrs. John Cushing says "no one is getting skunked" at Deep Bay. Fishing there is off the Yellow Rock lighthouse and down to Black Point. The blues are just on the five-pound King Fisherman weigher size.

On the freshwater scene there are summer steelhead in Harris Creek and the Chemainus and sea-run cutthroats are being taken from under the Deering Bridge.

Council Lake has been good.

Victoria Bob Lyons took first prize in the Catholic trout derby at Cowichan Lake Sunday with a 5.15-pounder he caught above Youbou, on a number 3 Gibbs spoon.

He also placed second in the AOTS derby at Cowichan Lake two weeks ago.

Somenos and Quamichan lakes are reported fair and Cowichan River fair to poor. Lakes in the Nanaimo area are all reported fair.

Stan McCarthy, Bert Ratcliffe, Ted Giron and Ed Davidson found "terrific" in Nanaimo Lakes at the weekend, but they were mostly small trout. A Lühr Jensen 88 was a killer lure, with Fourth Lake hottest spot, although Giron got a 3-pounder out of First Lake. The logging gates opens at 8 a.m., but if the fire hazard is extreme Crown Zellerbach does not open the gates at all.

Speaking of logging company access, we have another and annoying incident to report. Fishermen are being blamed for the deliberate burning of two power saws in the Weekes Lake operations of B.C. Forest Products in Jordan Meadows. How can we push for more access when things like this happen all too often?

Alberni area is at last producing some good fishing with the Ash River the best bet. Some big cutthroats have been coming from Great Central, Somenos Sproat and Stamp are all reported good and Taylor Arm of Sproat Lake has been giving up some lunker cutthroats.

Upper Campbell, Brewster and Lower Campbell are all reported good fishing and Buttle and Roberts Lake fair.

Last weekend we fished Spider Lake for bass and found it took a lot of casting to raise a four-pounder and a three-pounder, with Jim Tang taking the four-pounder on a shallow trolled Sonic plug. We also tried Horne Lake, fishing the dropoff at Horne River, but except for three strikes produced nothing.

Missing Anti-Castro Fighter Turns Up Safe in Penticton

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP) — A Penticton youth who joined the anti-Castro revolutionary force in April, then was later believed lost, walked arm-nounced into his parents' home here Wednesday night.

Enrol Raven, 20, who joined the ill-fated army to fight against Communism, hitchhiked to this Okanagan city from Florida.

He said in an interview he had difficulty enlisting because the force did not want Canadians.

Raven said he never reached Cuba — returning to Florida after a day at sea.

Raid 'Tipoff' By Top Officer

TORONTO (CP)—A police double agent, under cross-examination, said Thursday he had been told that James Bartlett, deputy commissioner of the provincial police, once tipped off a gambler to a club raid.

The agent also testified that two fellow members of the anti-gambling squad—constables Carman Lawrence and Ken Lahorie—admitted to him that they had taken bribes. Lawrence, he said, "had a piece of" a downtown Toronto gambling club.

UNDERCOVER MAN
Const. George Scott, the undercover man, was testifying at the trial of Robert Wright, former provincial policeman, and Joseph McDermott and Vincent Feeley. The three are charged with conspiring to interfere with the administration of justice by bribing Scott.

The agent testified also that there was ill-feeling between Wright on the one hand and Lawrence on the other. At one time, he said, there was a suggestion that Lawrence and Lahorie be squeezed off the anti-gambling squad to "protect the interests" of Wright and Scott.

The deputy commissioner's name came into the case during cross-examination of Scott by John Brooke, counsel for McDermott.

Miniature Railway Backers Unhappy

Backers of a $10,000 proposal to install a miniature railway as a tourist attraction here are reported unhappy with the city parks committee's latest suggestions for a site.

The committee, after denying the group use of Beacon Hill Park and Holland Point, proposed as alternative sites Victoria West Park or the city's portion of Gorge Park.

Parks chairman Ald. Millard Mooney, an enthusiastic supporter of the scheme, said backers are not satisfied with either.

"They want to put the miniature railway in a high-density area, he said.

The train, with 1,000 feet of track, was built by a former railway engineer in Mission, B.C., and was operated as a children's ride on the lower Mainland.

52-Year-Old Man Stricken
A 52-year-old man suffered a fatal heart attack at Broad and Cormorant yesterday.

Rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital, Ernest E. Penno, 1706 Fernwood, was dead on arrival.

The policeman testified that, while posing as a tipoff man to collect evidence for his superiors, he telephoned McDermott May 5, 1960, to tell him of a raid planned for the Ramsay Club in Niagara Falls.

He said McDermott told him he was already aware of the impending police action.

"Who did he tell you told him about it?" Mr. Brooke asked.

"Jimmy Bartlett," the constable replied.

Salt Bites Bridge

VANCOUVER (CP)—Salt, which is eating into the country's motor cars, is also biting into its highway bridges, the Engineering Institute of Canada was told Thursday.

A paper describing a program of bridge inspection and repair in London, Ont., said:

"The condition of many bridges was worse than might have been expected and the cause, in part, is attributed to increasing use of de-icing chemicals."

The paper, prepared by R. M. Dillon, consultant, and P. H. D. Edwards, senior structural engineer, of M. M. Dillon and Co. Ltd., recommends a number of protective measures, including sealing of concrete surfaces.

BOOMING BUSINESS

Appeal Made For People To Pay Piper

An appeal to all members of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce was launched this week in a letter asking for contributions to pay the salary of the "Scottish Piper" who meets the CPR and Washington State ferries in the Inner Harbor.

The piper starts duties next week.

Chamber official Sam Lane said the killed piper's salary would "be about $350 for the 10-week season."

"I feel the piper is one of our best tourist welcoming features," he said.

Mayors Ask Governments Needs of Depressed Areas

HALIFAX (CP)—Canada's mayors agreed Wednesday to ask the federal and provincial governments to figure out how much money is needed to assist Canada's depressed areas.

35 Years Completed
Veteran provincial agriculturist G. L. Landon, director of agricultural development and extension completed 35 years of service with the department this week.

He joined the department in May, 1926, as a poultry inspector and has held numerous positions including district agriculturist and poultry commissioner.

He was one of Canada's representatives at the world poultry congress in 1948.

Mr. Landon is a member of B.C. Institute of Agrologists.

ask the federal and provincial governments to figure out how much money is needed to assist Canada's depressed areas.

A resolution, which included recommendation on how to spend the money, was passed shortly before Works Minister Walker told delegates to the annual conference of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities to forget about an "insistent assumption" that Ottawa should contribute more to municipal projects.

The resolution asked for "positive national action" for depressed areas, including a survey of "every region where an abnormal surplus of labor exists" with a view to developing power, transport and urban services to support a more productive economy "on a long-term basis."

Treated by the Steri-Septic process these socks come to you sterile and remain sterile for their lifetime.

THE CUSHION SOLE SOCK THAT WENT TO TOWN!

Originally we thought of them mainly for golf, tennis, skiing, badminton and other sports. But first thing we knew people were wearing them every day... they really went to town, day in day out. People had never enjoyed anything like the restful cushion of 100% Kroy wool. And the comfort of the wool on the inside of the sock and the strength of the stretch nylon on the outside really intrigued them. They liked the "One Size" idea that made it easy to get a perfect fit. There's a choice of sixteen pleasant colours in this famous Harvey Woods Kroylon Cushion Sole sock. Try a few pairs for sports and everyday wear.

Perfect comfort for sports and town wear!

Construction Exceeds $10,000,000

Flurry Unexpected Mostly Unexplained

Greater Victoria's unexpected and largely unexplained 1961 construction boom continued through May and pushed the year's building permit total past the $10,000,000 mark.

But Victoria city building permit values fell behind the record 1960 pace for the first time since January.

TOTAL VALUE

Total value of building permits for the four Greater Victoria municipalities hit $10,216,000 at the end of May, compared with $8,439,000 during the same period last year.

Saanich, Esquimalt and Oak Bay all show increased construction activity in 1961.

OVER $4,000,000

Value of May permits in Victoria fell to $539,000 this year compared with $1,375,000 in 1960. Total permits issued this year in the city are valued at $3,622,000 while at this time last year the figure was slightly over $4,000,000.

Saanich has issued close to $4,000,000 in permits in 1961 and both Esquimalt and Oak Bay are well over the $1,000,000 mark.

INCREASE

Greater Victoria is one of the few metropolitan areas in Canada to show an increase this year over 1960 construction figures.

University Auditorium Site Urged

Gordon Head campus of Victoria University should definitely be considered as a possible site for a large Greater Victoria auditorium, according to Acting Mayor Millard Mooney.

He said there is "a good deal of merit" in a suggestion by R. B. Wilson, chairman of the university development committee, that a new auditorium should be built on the fringe of the new campus.

But he doubted that the city would take on such a project itself.

"An auditorium should be a Greater Victoria project because it will benefit the whole community," he said.

"If we can ever get together to build it I would think the campus should definitely be considered as a site."

Cadets Plan Rites Tonight

University School Cadet Corps is scheduled to conduct a sunset and retreat ceremony this evening on the lawns in front of the legislative buildings.

Dinner Dash

Flicka, 23-day-old foal, looks uncertain as mother coaches him for the dinner-bell race to be held Sunday by Vancouver Island Pony Breeders' Association during its second annual show at Saanich's fairgrounds from 1:30 p.m. Shirley Adams and Frank Obee assist in the briefing. (Colonist photo)

Appeal to Residents

Royal Oak Gets Date For Mail Deliveries

Victoria post office officials have set the last week of June as the target date for the start of door-to-door mail delivery in Royal Oak.

"It all hinges on whether residents have installed proper mail slots or receptacles for delivery," a spokesman said yesterday.

He said every home in the area had been canvassed earlier and advised that the change-over was taking place. A final check will be held next week to determine whether the required percentage of homes is equipped to receive mail.

The spokesman said the required figure was 80 per cent. Then Victoria can apply for permission to institute home delivery of mail.

The change-over will also bring Royal Oak's postal rate down to the four-cent level.

100 A DAY

"We have as many as 100 letters a day at the Royal Oak post office that require payment of a further two cents. This will be a big step towards stabilizing the postal rate in the Greater Victoria area," said the post office official.

The four-cent rate will apply from Victoria to Keating Cross Road.

The switch will bring Royal Oak under the Victoria post office. The Royal Oak post office will be closed and a sub-postal station established. Two of the present three employees at Royal Oak will be moved to jobs in Victoria. The third is retiring.

NEW AREA

The postal official said one new carrier would be taken on to service the new area.

He added a warning that homeowners who have not installed mail slots or receptacles would be obliged to pick up their undelivered mail at the Victoria post office. There are about 400 houses and 12 stores in the new delivery zone.

With Training

Local Police Could Be 'Tops'

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said yesterday that municipal police could reach top standards if they were trained at the Vancouver police academy.

He said the Vancouver police had excellent standards and that the training at the mainland police academy could be made available to members of other police forces.

"A cost arrangement would have to be worked out," he said.

Mr. Bonner was commenting on a call by Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele earlier this week for the provincial government to set standards for police training and advancement.

A resolution to be presented to the Union of B.C. Municipalities in September calls upon the government to:

● Give some direction as to the standards required for entry and advancement of police constables.

● Consider setting up a standardized system of training and examination of police constables.

RCMP MATTER

Mr. Bonner said the provincial government's main commitment with police was with the RCMP and that training was strictly an RCMP matter.

He said he understood some municipalities had inquired into the question of having their police trained at Vancouver, but the subject was never pursued.

Most economical way of ensuring top standards in municipal police forces would be to have the officers trained at the Vancouver academy, he said.

Mr. Bonner declined to give his views on the standards of some of the smaller municipal forces.

"I'm not in a position to say anything about that," he said.

Legs Broken, Two Rushed To Hospital

Two persons were rushed to hospital by city police from separate accidents yesterday, each with a broken right leg.

At 10:45 a.m. the police ambulance answered a call to Ogden Point, and from there took Albert J. Anderson, 37, of 1158 Goldstream, to Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Police said the man had been riding on a big lumber loader, had jumped down to move a piece of lumber, slipped on loose gravel and was run over by the loader.

At 12:55 p.m. Lida Ogilvie, 57, of Fontana, Calif., a visitor to Victoria, fell while at the Wax Museum, breaking her right thigh.

Initial Probe

Census 'Army' on the Move

First wave of an army of 275 census-takers made an initial probe yesterday of Victoria's residential areas.

And they'll be back again today, before officials in charge of the enumerators pause for a final class of instructions before the big push Monday.

CORRECT MISTAKES

"We intend to survey what has been done so far and correct any mistakes before we really get down to business," said Norman McLeod, Dominion Bureau of Statistics official in charge of the Victoria operation.

On Wednesday, the enumerators conducted a one-day survey of transients living in Victoria motels and rooming houses. They said they were surprised at the lack of visitors to the city.

BUSY TIME

"With the weather as fine as it is, we really figured we would have a busy time. But from the number of places that were almost empty, the tourist trade must be way down," said one enumerator.

They hit only one snag — a motel operator who refused to co-operate.

Besides providing the government with an actual population figure, the census will also give vital information needed in planning by all levels of government.

"You might call it a national stock-taking," said Mr. McLeod. Besides the normal questions on ethnic origin, annual wages (not income; census takers are only concerned with the basic wage, not outside earnings) and the number of children in the family, occupants of every fifth house will be asked more detailed questions.

Gusta Holland looking for her friend Lillian Saxby.

Big Push Monday

This will provide figures with which to compile Canadian migration trends, basic earnings and spending.

One detail that escapes many Canadians (example: the reluctant motel operator) is the fact that the census covers all residents of Canada, whether they are citizens or not.

This means Americans or Europeans who have retained their foreign citizenship will also come under the census scrutiny. But visitors here on business or pleasure trips won't be enumerated.

VICTORIA DISTRICT

The Victoria operation covers the Victoria electoral district (city, Oak Bay and Esquimalt) and the Esquimalt-Saanich electoral district.

Most of the census-takers were recruited through the National Employment Service. Students over 18, war veterans and unemployed men and women were given priority for the job.

$1.50 AN HOUR

They underwent four half-day training sessions, for which they were paid $25. They are paid by the call on a system that works out to a basic $1.50 an hour.

The census-takers are hired by local commissioners and must pass a test designed to weed out the overly-officious.

They are sworn to secrecy about the information they receive and it is a criminal offence if they break this oath.

One of the main purposes of the census, which is conducted in the first year of each decade, is to decide the question of parliamentary redistribution of House of Commons constituencies in line with population shifts.

"Well, it's here," said a motel operator, happily mopping his brow, "Bring on the tourists."

No One Knows Where

Adventurer Guzzwell Off to Sea Once More

Adventurer John Guzzwell, slipped quietly away from Canoe Cove several weeks ago. Customs officials said yesterday that Mr. Guzzwell left here at 5 p.m. May 10 with two other people aboard, after notifying them he was "leaving Canadian waters."

Keep Sun-Tan Lotion Handy Again Today

Victorians will probably be basting themselves with suntan lotion again today — the second day of a heat wave that sent the mercury spiking into the 80s yesterday.

Downtown stores reported a brisk business in lotions, bathing suits, sun glasses and other hot-weather aids.

Mom and dad took their cue from Junior on the dietary front, and ice cream and soft drink sales doubled.

The first wave of heat refugees hit the beaches yesterday afternoon and today's return is expected to see them return in force.

Sedans prowled through downtown streets, no-drafts akimbo, and convertible drivers gingerly eased themselves onto oven-hot car seats.

Ties were shucked, nylons discarded, coats abandoned and hair-dos wilted under the baking sun.

First Aiders On Parade Monday

St. John Ambulance Brigade members are expected to turn out in force at 6:30 p.m. Monday for the annual inspection of the Victoria unit at 941 Pandora.

After the inspection by George Archer, provincial commissioner, and chief constable of Vancouver City Police, first aid and home nursing demonstrations will be presented.

'Coon Reports Don't Mean Explosion in Population

Despite the number of reports of raccoons up trees and poles this year, there hasn't been any population explosion in this section of the animal kingdom, fish and game officials indicated yesterday.

Two of the ring-tailed animals were shot by police on Hampshire in Oak Bay yesterday, and another in Beacon Hill Park. The latter had been taking a toll among ducklings in the park.

This week a 'coon caused concern in Belmont Park by getting stranded up a power pole one night, and a nearby tree the next. It evidently got away Wednesday night.

A few weeks ago another was shot from the top of a power pole on Richmond, and many have been killed on roads and highways.

Much of the concern displayed by humans when they see a 'coon up a pole or tree is needless, the game people said.

"If people would just go away, instead of clustering around the tree or pole, the animal would come down by itself."

"Raccoons used to be on the protected list for trapping, but the demand fell off to a point where the animal was placed on the open-season list."

"Although they're on the open-season list, they may not be shot within police-municipalities except by police — and this is done only when the animal has been making costly raids, or when no other action appears possible."

Treatment Goes to Head Of Waitress in a Tizzy

CHAIN REACTION: An elderly customer walked into a city restaurant the other day, said he was feeling faint, and asked if he could have a glass of water.

A waitress went and got the water and had just returned when the elderly gentleman passed out in a faint.

This unnerved the waitress who herself became dizzy.

She was led to a back booth and someone produced a glass with a couple of ounces of brandy in it. This she downed in one gulp.

The upshot was the elderly gentleman soon recovered and after a little treatment appeared none the worse for wear.

The waitress had to go home — looped!

MUTE PROTEST: A storekeeper we know invariably asks whether his customers want a small package or a large package when they ask for cigarettes.

Wednesday, of course, was "no-smoking day" and everyone who asked for cigarettes was told: "You know the government says you shouldn't smoke today."

Informed of this nearly every customer decided to buy a large package of cigarettes.

HITHER AND YAWN: Victoria's Eric Charman yesterday won the B.C. finals of the Jaycee national oratorical contest at Penitence and will now represent the province in the Canadian finals.

Victoria Rotary Club bulletin says A.M. Geoff Edgell is all of a twitter at the thought of accompanying May Queen Nina Holden and her attendants to the Portland Rose Festival this year.

A glance around our town these days is sure proof June is busting out all over.

Sign of summer: The Tally Ho's are back in business again.

CHUG-A-LUG JUNGLE: Cocktail bars are cocktail bars and beer parlors are beer parlors and the twain meet about 6:30 every night.

Liquor Control Board regulations force beer parlors to shut up shop for an hour's "supper break" every night but there are no such regulations governing cocktail bars.

Many drinkers don't like being regulated so they go off to a cocktail bar to spend their hour in the wilderness.

Most of these have already had too much to drink.

I guess there's nothing really wrong with a character sitting in a cocktail bar dressed in greasy overalls and a hardhat perched on his head — except that it leaves grease smudges all over the white dress of the gal who sits at the same seat after he's gone.

But there is something wrong when the same character keeps on falling off his chair or stool, uses foul language and drinks his beer straight from the bottle.

For their part the waiters conscientiously keep an eye on things and are quick to ask the worst to leave.

And then the patron, swamped with liquid courage, wants to fight the waiter.

All in all it doesn't create quite the right atmosphere to make you want to go into the bar for a cocktail or two before dinner.

Something should be done — even if it means keeping the beer parlors open without a supper break. You can't force people who don't want to stop drinking to go home.

BRIEFLY NOTED: A letter from Theophilus and Geraldine Lamarre of Monroe, Mich., asks that everyone in Victoria pray for one minute in the 24-hour period preceding the meeting of Premier Khrushchev and President Kennedy.

Similar letters have gone out all over the U.S. in an attempt to aid the cause of peace.

Friend of ours is a census enumerator. He also works down at the legislature during sessions. He told us yesterday that those all-night sittings are a piece of cake compared with the job of getting people to answer census questions.

A pleasant way to plan a tea... over a cup of tea. Left to right, Mrs. G. Bone, Mrs. H. Buxton, and Mrs. W. Rogers sit in the garden at Mrs. Buxton's home to plan the forthcoming Carne Rebekah Lodge No. 45 garden party which will be held Wednesday, June 7, from 2.30 to 4.30 p.m. The party will be held in the garden of the Buxton home at 1566 Hillside Avenue. Mrs. Rogers is convener of the affair, while Mrs. Buxton will be hostess. Mrs. Bone is noble grand of the lodge. — (Bill Boucher photo.)

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My mother was having company for dinner and she baked a beautiful angel food cake and put it on the kitchen table to cool. When nobody was looking, our cat Bessie jumped up on the table and she ate a good-sized hunk out of the cake before anyone could stop her.

My mother got very mad when she caught Bessie at it and hit her with a dish towel. I tried to protect my little pet and caught a few lashes myself. I tried to explain that it wasn't Bessie's fault and that Mom should not have left the cake where she could get at it.

Mom says Bessie knew perfectly well that she was doing something wrong. Please, Miss Landers, tell me if Bessie really knew what she was doing?—BESSIE'S FRIEND.

Dear Friend: When a cat sees a cake he doesn't think of right or wrong. He thinks only of cake.

Your mother should not have put the cake where Bessie could get at it. Next time suggest she put it on top of the refrigerator.

Dear Ann Landers: Several weeks ago our son married a girl we knew nothing about. He phoned to tell us they had eloped. They are both in their middle 20s and we felt they were old enough to know what they were doing.

Last week he phoned again to say they were starting out in a second-hand car, and hoped they would "make it." Since it's a 2,500-mile trip, we were quite worried. A few days later we got a postcard saying the car had broken down 1,000 miles from here and they didn't know what they would do.

At 4.00 this morning they showed up at the front door. I was dead-tired, looked a mess and very much annoyed with

Ensign Choice Of IODE

CALGARY (CP)—Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire delegates wound up its annual five-day meeting here Wednesday by re-electing its national president, Mrs. Peter L. Robinson of Toronto.

At the final business session, delegates unanimously endorsed a resolution asking the federal government to proclaim the Red Ensign as Canada's national flag before centennial celebrations in 1967.

Councillors, elected for one-year terms, included: British Columbia, Mrs. K. H. Bancroft, Mrs. Peter Poops, Mrs. Frank Stead, Vancouver; Mrs. V. C. Best, Ganges, and Mrs. Owen P. Fowler, Victoria.

Dear E. D. J.: I agree with you that your son showed poor judgment and no consideration. He should have given you a few hours' warning.

To learn the booby-traps of teen-age dating, write for Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-Age Dating," enclosing with your request 25 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

One Family Owns Home and Garden Since 1894

On Wednesday, June 7, Victorians may enjoy the pleasure of visiting one of Victoria's older gardens, when St. Andrew's Cathedral Altar Society hold a garden party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Larrigan, 1728 Quadra Street. The affair, which will include a home baking stall, will be opened by Mrs. F. F. Amyot. The Boy Scouts are in charge of the home baking stall. Pictured seated, left to right, are Mrs. Larrigan, Mrs. W. Nosal and Mrs. R. Lessard; standing, Mrs. E. Gandy, Mrs. C. L. Hinchcliffe and Mr. Larrigan. Mr. G. Larrigan's great-grandfather, John Ward, acquired this property in 1894, when it was known as "124 Quadra, corner of Pioneer." Pioneer is now North Park Street. For many years Mr. Ward and his daughters operated a general store at which one could buy everything from fine, imported lace to kegs of square nails. The store is no longer operating, but still stands on the corner of the garden. The original part of the old home is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Larrigan. The garden where the party will be held lies one block west of Hudson's Bay Company, and shares the distinction of being one of the oldest gardens in Victoria. It has always been in the hands of the original family.

Jackie Adopted by French

PARIS (AP) — Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy's visit to Paris is sure to have a strong effect on the fall and winter collections that French fashion houses will show in July.

Paris designers are sensitive to outside influences, although normally a bit condescending about American dress.

They make an exception in Mrs. Kennedy's case, partly because they have already adopted her as French. Local newspapers and women's magazines have published lyrical tributes to "Jackie," sure that the admiration is mutual. They praise her elegance and taste.

The fashion house are expected to offer her a private, combined showing of their top models at her apartment in the foreign ministry.

Givenchy, who in the past has designed some gowns for Mrs. Kennedy, is doing no boasting. The White House has denied that Mrs. Kennedy is at present buying any clothes from Paris.

favorite — and materials will be faithfully noted and acted on.

The French consider that Jacqueline Kennedy's fashion taste was probably formed in her Sorbonne student days in Paris, and whatever she wears usually meets their approval. If she were given to eccentricities, she could launch new trends in a twinkling.

Garden Notes

Pruning That Plum

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRAS
Many gardeners never prune their plum trees and still are able to take a surprisingly good crop from them. In most cases, though, unpruned plums become a tangled mass of thin, brittle wood and, although the total crop may be heavy, the individual fruits are small and with far too much wastage in skin and stones—just like a "bargain" chicken for Sunday dinner—all bone and no flesh.

The plum is one tree that should never be pruned in winter, as there is always considerable risk of an infection called Silver Leaf. This fungus is spread by tiny pores carried by the wind which enter the tree through open wounds and, once established inside the wood, you can't get at it with any kind of spray or dust.

By doing your pruning a week or two after petal-fall, the cuts will exude a "gum" which seals off the wound and provides a natural barrier to the silver leaf spores. Another advantage of summer pruning is that it is much easier to judge what parts are overcrowded when the tree is in full leaf. You can also spot just what branches are likely to become overloaded with fruit and break at the crotch. By thoughtful pruning, both breakage and over-cropping can be prevented.

As most plum trees are much bigger and taller than the dwarf apples and pears currently in fashion, you'll need either one of those long-armed pruners, or a ladder and a sharp pair of secateurs. Use a saw only when absolutely necessary, for large cut surfaces should be avoided wherever possible and all rough saw cuts should be trimmed smooth with a knife to promote rapid healing.

With most varieties, the tips of the main branches are left unpruned, but sometimes you run into "droopers"—trees which have developed almost a weeping habit of growth. These should have the drooping branch tips cut back to a bud or side branch which is pointing upward. If the weeping habit is left uncontrolled, the upper branches will take all the food and light and the downward-sloping portions will lose their vigor.

It is a fairly common thing for plums to set such a heavy crop of fruit that main branches break under the sheer weight of the crop. The break is usually at the crotch and the falling branch will often tear away a strip of bark and a great gouge from the trunk. Trees have been ruined in this way and in the Okanagan special padded crutches are used to support the weaker branches when heavy with fruit.

Use your imagination and try to visualize this condition. If you think a branch has set too much fruit for its strength, it is best shortened quite ruthlessly. It takes a lot of will power to sacrifice all that potential fruit, but the plums on the remaining part of the branch will be plumper and sweeter, and you'll sleep better nights knowing your tree is in no danger.

Victoria Benefits

Tourist Flood Predicted

Indications are that Victoria is in for a bumper crop of tourists this year. After adding up the figures, tourist agencies both here and in Washington indicate the Pacific Northwest will be crowded with visitors by mid-summer.

Most encouraging figures come from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, which reports that up to the end of April, travel vehicle permits issued at border points showed an increase of 12 per cent for the first four months of the year, compared with 1960.

And Washington is braced for an estimated influx of 6,000,000 tourists who will come by plane, train, bus and car. They will spend an estimated $230,000,000, the state department of commerce and economic development predicted.

Sam Boddy, acting director of the department, predicted a tourist increase of up to seven per cent, slightly over the eight per cent boost in visitors last year. Mr. Boddy said requests for travel material rose 18 per cent in March over totals for the same month last year.

Local prediction by William Hawkins, of the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau, called for a minimum of 15 per cent of Washington's 6,000,000 visitors to travel on to Vancouver Island.

B.C. Travel Bureau officials backed up their forecasts for an increase in tourism this year with figures showing an increase in the number of tourist information inquiries through the Victoria office.

They said they had received 36,480 inquiries up to the end of May.

Far-Flung Eskimo Kids Get to Know Diefenbaker

OTTAWA (CP)—Thirty Eskimo children at Cape Dorset in the Northwest Territories are getting to know Prime Minister Diefenbaker through a picture.

They wrote him Feb. 16 in English and Eskimo hieroglyphics saying they wanted a picture "so we may get to know you."

The letter, written in pencil and crayon on lined school-room paper, was signed in both languages by the 30 students of the Cape Dorset federal day school.

The picture was duly sent off with Mr. Diefenbaker's compliments.

Hollywood Today

By Sheilah Graham

Clift Plays Freud Role

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Montgomery Clift is in Ireland with director John Huston for whom he will play the title role in "Freud." And Hope Lange looks very possible for the role of Mrs. Freud. Huston will start his movie about the father of psychiatry in Vienna, Aug. 15, and the film will then shuttle to Munich for 90 days or so. The interiors will be done in London. I had heard of opposition to the project from the Freud family, but apparently everything is settled and Clift will work with Huston on the difficult assignment until they leave for Vienna.

Rachel Roberts will be Mrs. Rex Harrison by the time she appears in "Term of Trial" with Laurence Harvey and Hayley Mills. Miss Roberts reminds me a great deal of the late Kay Kendall who was Mrs. Rex Harrison. Tammy Grimes also looks like Kay did and, for a while there last summer, it seemed that Tammy would be the next Mrs. H.

Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward have been touring the fashionable East 60's and 70's in New York, stopping passers-by and asking, "Do you know of any houses that are available around here?"

For the first time in years, there will not be a "Night of a Hundred Stars" midnight show in London this month. Sir Laurence Olivier was always busy with this project, which featured every top star in London, past and present.

I'm told that James Mason gives the performance of his career as the lecherous Humbert Humbert in "Lolita." ... James' wife, Pamela, has just been given $1,000,000 by her father who was visiting her in Hollywood. Then as has, gits. ... Margaret Leighton is battling ex-husband Laurence Harvey on the alimony score.

The Helen Ainsworth-produced "Jericho," starring Guy Madison and seen last week on the Zane Grey Theatre, has two networks bidding for the series rights. Helen told me the original idea was not a western, but a suave modern show titled "Man at the Top." Western or modern, the characterization of Jericho by Mr. Madison was excellent.

Sammy Davis Jr. has a hit album—"The Wham of Sam"—on the new Frank Sinatra label. It's selling very well all over the country. I'm told, especially in New York. Sammy and wife Mal Britt expect the baby in about two months.

Organization, Finance

Independent Probe Urged for CBC

OTTAWA (CP)—Auditor General Maxwell Henderson Thursday strongly invited a Commons committee to recommend that the CBC's organization and financial operations be studied by an independent firm of management consultants.

Until this is done, he said, the CBC's plans for a $70,000,000 consolidation of broadcast facilities in Toronto and Montreal should be shelved.

Mr. Henderson also said the publicly owned corporation should continue to get parliamentary grants on a one-year basis, instead of for longer periods, "in the light of apprehension over the manner in which the corporation spends its money."

The auditor-general—Parliament's watchdog on public spending—was controller of the CBC for more than two years before he took over his present job March 1 last year.

He told the Commons broadcasting committee that its lengthy hearings this session have turned up evidence of economies and savings that could be carried out in the CBC.

He said the CBC management rejected a suggestion he made last year for an independent study of its organization by outside management consultants.

"Until these very fundamental questions of organization, management and internal control are settled" it would be difficult to make recommendations in other areas of CBC operations.

Mr. Henderson also recommended that the CBC board chairmanship be a full-time job. The chairman, like eight other CBC directors, serves only part-time.

'How Would You Feel?'

Car Winner Calm

A 22-year-old plasterer was giant bingo at Memorial last night's Kinsmen Club. Tao Rohner, 1476 Gladstone, who emigrated to Canada from Germany four years ago, took his good fortune calmly.

"How would you feel if you had just won a brand new car?" he returned with a smile when quizzed by reporters. "It's the first time I've ever won anything like this," he said.

He was one of 11 semi-finalists in the full-card bingo for the main prize.

The field was narrowed to two, Mrs. Richard Boyden, 829 Condon, and Mr. Rohner.

It took six tiebreaker numbers before the winner was announced.

"I'm still in shock," said Mrs. Boyden, after the decision.

Mr. Rohner said he already had a car—an ancient station wagon he uses in his business.

"I'll sure keep this one. On the money I make I couldn't afford to buy a new car like this."

More than 5,500 people were on hand to vie for prizes totalling $11,500 in value.

Other winners included Mrs. William Bittner, 700 Newbury, color television set; Mrs. Y. Bennett, 916 Dale Street, $100; Mrs. W. Thompson, 1012 Tillamook Road, garden furniture; R. Roberts, 1972 Bay Street, holiday camping outfit. Mrs. Harold Byford, 5320 Westholme Road, $500; Mrs. M. Bone, 951 Bay Street, power mower; John M. Cook, 1391 Victoria Avenue, movie camera, screen and projector; Fred Stephenson, 150 Maddock West, camera; Mrs. Cruickshank, 305 Government, picnic case set.

Wear White Garb at Night Elderly Pedestrians Urged

Victoria's city fathers should try to educate elderly pedestrians to wear light-colored clothing when they go out after dark, R. J. Hastings, president of the Canadian Automobile Association, said here yesterday.

Mr. Hastings, of Vancouver, attending the CAA's 47th annual meeting being held at the Empress Hotel, said he noticed while driving around Victoria that pedestrians cross the street in the middle of the block.

He said he had also heard that a large percentage of Victoria's residents are elderly and wear dark clothing when walking at nighttime.

"Pedestrians are a little more careless in Victoria than Vancouver," said Mr. Hastings. "Traffic is not as fast here, and pedestrians are less conscious of the danger."

"Both the police and city officials should stress the need for elderly people to wear light clothing."

Trio of Plays Well Received

By BERT BINNY

The second of the three evenings of competitive drama in the Provincial Festival finals provided another program of fine entertainment yesterday.

As on Wednesday the evening and locales of the plays varied greatly, starting in ancient Greece, stopping for a time in mid-Victorian London and finishing in 20th century Medicine Hat.

Quennell's "The Faithful Widow of Ephesus" came first, a play strongly resembling "A Phoenix Too Frequent" which was delightfully presented in the regional festival by the Victoria Theatre Guild.

All the Quennell players established quite adequate characters but several were quite hard to hear.

Roderick Campbell as the Ghost of Cleon was consistently excellent. Derek McCoey acted beautifully but had poor audibility. Judy Clegg gained some stature as Hermione as the play progressed. Mary Rigby and Rose Tompkins as Phyllis and Amanda showed what big contributions bit parts can make to the success of any production.

The lighting and effects were particularly good in this play.

LOTS OF LAUGHS

Trail Little Theatre's "Box and Cox" drew lots of laughs. Both Jack Fisher and Frank Fuller dealt confidently and successfully with the unaccustomed language of the 114-year-old play. They were described by adjudicator Florence James as "very good" and she also, praised the Victorian, cluttered effect of the set.

Haney Cast Here Tonight

Teacher Flees from Desk To Teach Convicts Drama

The vice-principal of a British theatrical school, tired of being stuck behind a desk all day, has ended up in British Columbia teaching inmates of the Haney Correctional Institution how to act.

Anthony Holland, 41, of Haney, a counsellor for the John Howard Society of B.C., is director of 13 of Haney's inmates who will compete tonight in the B.C. Drama Festival one-act finals in Victoria.

NEW EXPERIENCE

Working with inmates was a new experience for Mr. Holland when he came to Canada four years ago. He spent most of his life on the stage, entertained troops in the Middle East during the Second World War, and had spent seven years at the Bristol Old Vic Theatre School when he became "frustrated, bored, I guess," and emigrated to Canada.

"I was somewhat intrigued that someone would want to use drama inside a prison setting," said Mr. Holland, adding that once he, Haney officials and the inmates got past the initial shock, the newly-formed HCI Players seemed to keep some inmates "from withdrawing completely from society."

GIVES THEM GLOW

Drama gives inmates a way of releasing their suppressed feelings against society. "It gives them confidence and a glow you get from giving when a show is acceptable."

The director said "Haney is the only one in Canada which goes outside its walls and gives public performance with mixed groups." Seven civilian women will be on stage with the inmates during their one-act play here tonight.

His biggest problem is a rapid turnover of actors because inmates spend less than two years at Haney, "on the other hand, I have a constant supply of actors," he said.

Former Deputy Trade Minister Dies Suddenly

Edwin G. Rowebottom, former deputy minister of trade and industry for many years, died suddenly yesterday at the Queen's Printer building where he had gone to inspect the plant as chairman of a conciliation board in a labor dispute.

Apparently suffering a stroke, Mr. Rowebottom collapsed and was dead by the time a city police ambulance arrived to take him to hospital.

Bear Mauls Canadian At Pole

OTTAWA (UPI)—A polar bear attacked a member of Canada's Continental Shelf project expedition and mauled one of his arms, Mines Minister Paul Comtois disclosed last night.

Mr. Comtois gave few details of the attack but said the man was not in hospital. There was no mention of the fate of the bear, which wandered into the scientists' camp 800 miles from the North Pole.

The body was conveyed to Hayward's funeral home. The former deputy and his wife lived at 2582 Vista Bay. A native of Lake La Hache, in the Cariboo, where he was born in 1889, Mr. Rowebottom came to Victoria as a boy, and was educated in schools here.

PRINTING FIRM

In 1909 he operated a printing firm which later was acquired by Diggon-Hibben, and which later became Heben Printing Co. Ltd. He was for a time engaged in real estate, and then a partner in a wholesale firm.

He joined the provincial service in 1934 as deputy minister of industries, when that portfolio was under the provincial treasury.

FOUR YEARS

Four years later, the then Premier T. D. Pattullo announced Mr. Rowebottom's appointment as deputy minister of a new department of trade and industry, under Hon. W. J. Assestine.

He retained that post until his retirement late in 1954.

In the years between he became nationally known for his work in promoting tourism and publicity, holding for some years the position of president of the Canadian Association of Tourist and Publicity Bureaus.

RECENT WEEKS

In recent weeks he had been active in the Salvation Army's Matson Sunset Lodge fund drive.

He was president of the Men's Canadian Club and had been a member of the organization for many years. He was a member of the St. Andrew's Masonic Lodge.

He was also active in the work of the YMCA, serving for a time as president.

He is survived by his wife, Ethel; two sons, Howard, Los Angeles, and Lorne, Ottawa, and a sister, Mrs. Muriel Pankhurst, Victoria.

NATO Must Widen Role —Kennedy

PARIS (Reuters)—President Kennedy, in his first speech to the NATO permanent council, called on the 15-nation alliance Thursday to expand its influence throughout the world.

He also reaffirmed American defence commitments, saying the United States is "totally involved" in the destiny of Western Europe.

U.S. COMMITTED

NATO and world defence problems were covered by Kennedy and President de Gaulle during more than three hours of talks in two sessions Thursday—the second day of the American president's state visit to France.

In his speech Kennedy restated the United States "strong commitment" to the defence of Western Europe.

'MORE INTIMATE'

"We believe it vital to the security of the United States and intend to honor our commitments."

"We want to see this association become more intimate. We want to see it play an expanded and greater part throughout the world."

ALLIANCE LAUDED

Kennedy called for "new life" to be given to the Atlantic alliance which he described as forming the most powerful group of people in the world.

It was necessary to consider the changes which have taken place since NATO was set up as an anti-Communist alliance and think of other areas in the world where increased pressures were being brought to bear.

PLEDGE OFFERED

Although Kennedy, in his talks with de Gaulle, did not approve the French president's bid for a three-power strategy board, U.S. officials said de Gaulle probably would get the substance of his request without the formation of a new organizational setup.

Kennedy's advisers were prepared for de Gaulle to ask for a stronger voice in world affairs and had been working on the problem for several days. U.S. officials said what Kennedy offered was a pledge to consult closely before taking major action anywhere on matters involving the East-West struggle.

What de Gaulle did not get was complete acceptance of

B.C. ENGINEERS SOLVE FISH-POWER PROBLEM

Room for Both In Fast Rivers

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia can have both fish and power from its fast-flowing river systems, the Engineering Institute of Canada was told yesterday.

Papers presented at the institute's annual meeting indicated that the baffling problem of building power dams and at the same time allowing salmon to get to their spawning grounds, has at last reached a stage of solution.

INCREASE NEEN

The papers indicated, too, that with proper measures the salmon yield can be substantially increased. At the same time, continued and increased research was urged.

Val Gwyther, Vancouver consulting engineer, stated:

"The present policy of retardation of power development in a watershed, due to our inability to produce the answer to beneficial fish migration, is in the past, and these watersheds now are open to development of both fish and power."

'NO DOUBT'

There is no doubt, Mr. Gwyther said, that we now can produce salmon species in great quantities, jointly with other resources values, and with economy.

Mr. Gwyther's paper went at length into the problems of fish propagation. Rearing capacities of natural and impounded lakes should be utilized by artificial fertilization and incubation of eggs to give a yield far in excess of that from natural spawning grounds.

SOCKEYE YIELD NEEN

Taking as an example the clearwater watershed, a tributary of the North Thompson River, where no sockeye now exists, Mr. Gwyther estimated a possible yearly sockeye value to fishermen of $22,000,000 which with estimated power value, would give the watershed a total economic value of some $52,000,000 annually.

Another paper presented yesterday while less immediately optimistic, stated:

"It is very likely that further research will show that the Fraser and other rivers in British Columbia can be developed for multi-purposes."

CONCEPTS REVISED

This paper, by J. F. Muir and Eugen Rusu of the University of B.C.'s civil engineering department, added:

spokesmen said Thursday that there was no legal reason why the budget could not be introduced before all provisions of the baby budget were approved by both Houses.

SECOND READING

But it is understood that the government is reluctant to introduce the main budget until the Customs Tariff Bill has at least been passed out of the Senate banking and commerce committee. It has received second reading in the Senate. Last month in the House Mr. Fleming denied there had been any delay in bringing down his main budget. He noted that the last budget had not yet passed all phases of the parliamentary procedure.

This was a reference to the Customs and Tariff Bill. The next day in the House Mr. Fleming in reply to another Opposition question said he did not know of any precedent for an Opposition asking for the introduction of a budget when there was one measure of the previous budget still waiting final enactment.

On at least two occasions Mr. Fleming has suggested in the House that it would be improper to introduce his new budget before the pre-Christmas baby budget was approved by the Commons and Senate. However, government

It now appears unlikely that the budget will be introduced next week. There have been persistent reports that it would be brought down on either June 6 or June 8.

On at least two occasions Mr. Fleming has suggested in the House that it would be improper to introduce his new budget before the pre-Christmas baby budget was approved by the Commons and Senate. However, government

"Recent research has caused a drastic revision of concepts that have prevailed during the last 30 years on the fish passage problem, especially on the exhaustion of adult fish caused by steepness and height of ladders."

"It now appears that fish passage through ladders can be made relatively easy."

It added: "Many British Columbia power sites can be developed to produce hydroelectric energy at costs a kilowatt hour substantially less than the cost of atomic energy."

Development of the Fraser River system is a logical next step after the Columbia in providing large blocks of power that will be needed in the future."

Yarrows Linked with Deal For Automated Soviet Mill

Church Merger Urged

TORONTO (CP)—Delegates from more than 600 United Church congregations called Thursday for union with the 180,000-member Presbyterian Church in Canada.

Toronto Conference of the United Church of Canada, representing more than one-third of the church's 1,016,878 members, approved without debate a resolution urging the church's general council to formally invite the Presbyterians to consider plans for a merger.

The move would heal a split created in 1925, when Methodists, Congregationalists and most Presbyterian churches combined to form the United Church.

Both churches are currently engaged in general discussions on unity with the Anglican Church.

The Victoria shipyard and industrial steel fabricating firm of Yarrows Ltd. was named by two Seattle firms yesterday as being involved in a Russian order for what would be the world's largest automated sawmill.

John A. Wallace, general manager of Yarrows, said although it is true his firm was negotiating with the Seattle companies, "we are not the principals in this particular arrangement" and "there is no comment I can make."

The Seattle firms toured down a $150,000 order for six of the latest type of automatic lumber-sorting machines because they would go to Russia. The presidents of the two companies said Russia was trying to buy North American technical know-how in building the world's largest automated sawmill "and we will have no part in handing this advantage to our sworn enemy."

They said the Russians are 20 years behind the new lumber-handling techniques recently developed and put into operation in Washington state. Gordon B. Anderson of Puget Sound Fabricators, Inc., said his firm was approached last Friday by representatives of Yarrows and the Preston Woodworking Machinery Company Ltd. of Preston, Ont., with the Preston firm "originating" the order.

SUB-CONTRACTING

"Yarrows was a party to the situation like we were" in that they were not the originators of the deal but would merely do sub-contracting, said Mr. Anderson.

The automated sawmill, costing millions of dollars, would be capable of handling 1,500,000 board feet a day, he said, adding that he understands Canadians may have a different attitude than Americans on trade with Russia.

"You people have one point of view, we have another. This is a matter of different points of view," said Mr. Anderson.

BULLETIN

VANCOUVER (CP)—Representatives of 150 Coast logging firms and 28,000 woodworkers agreed Thursday on proposed contract which would introduce industry-wide health and welfare coverage but contains no general pay increase.

Proposed one-year agreement would keep present $1.92 basic hourly wage except for firemen and engineers, who would receive increases ranging from 4½ cents to 10 cents an hour.

International Woodworkers of America president Joe Morris described the proposed agreement as "a major breakthrough."

De Gaulle Reassured On West Berlin Issue

By BORIS MISEEV
(Canadian Press)

The Paris meeting between President Kennedy and President de Gaulle may have a greater effect on the future of the Western alliance than at first appears.

CORDIAL NOTE

The first encounter of the two presidents was on a most cordial note and apparently produced agreement on the West Berlin issue which may come up at talks between Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev in Vienna this weekend.

French anxiety that the Russians may launch a new move against the Western position in Berlin is behind Kennedy's stand — meant to leave no doubt in Khrushchev's mind about the determination of the Western powers to defend their interests in that city.

STAND REINFORCED

The United States president reinforced the Western stand by promising that American troops will remain in Europe as long as they are required, ready to meet any threat with whatever response is needed.

This promise should make the understanding between de Gaulle and Kennedy a little clearer. A possible U.S. decision to withdraw its troops rather than risk a nuclear war has been partly responsible for de Gaulle's insistence on providing France with her own atomic striking force.

TRICKY PROBLEM

But the agreement on Berlin and the American promise to keep its force in Europe were among the less touchy items of business. A more tricky problem is the one that divides de Gaulle's France from her Western allies.

It will be difficult to make NATO more effective unless France can be persuaded to play a more co-operative role in the alliance. France is the chief force in the way of a fully interdependent NATO.

FRANCE BLAMED

France also has been blamed by the Russians for being an obstacle to the disarmament talks in Geneva because of French nuclear tests.

Kennedy's task will be to persuade de Gaulle to give up France's nuclear tests in the hope of obtaining an agreement on disarmament.

Nikita Carries Czech Demands

By HENRY SHAPIRO

VIENNA (UPI)—Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev comes here today armed with demands by Czech officials that the problems of Berlin and Germany be given prime consideration at the forthcoming summit talks.

Khrushchev met Czech Communist leaders yesterday and then retired to prepare himself for his face-to-face meeting with President Kennedy.

'NO SOVIET PUNISH'

There was evidence that both sides were trying to play down East-West differences in the troublesome German problem.

In Paris, high U.S. officials attempted to quell speculation that the Khrushchev-Kennedy talks would be held against a backdrop of increased Soviet pressure on Berlin.

They reported that Kennedy's advisers had told him there was no reason to believe a new Soviet push against Germany or Berlin would be made before this November.

Communist journalists here said the Soviet press has been asked to use moderation in criticism of Kennedy and the United States at least until the summit meeting is concluded.

'RIGHT CLIMATE'

They were asked at a recent briefing in Moscow to prepare a "favorable international climate" for the conference. The Communist reporters said Khrushchev was reported

Fleming, Nowlan to Air Tariff Bill in Senate

Special to the Colonist

OTTAWA—Finance Minister Donald Fleming and Minister of National Revenue George Nowlan are scheduled to appear before the Senate banking and commerce committee next week to explain the government's Customs Tariff Bill.

The delay in the passage of the bill through the House and the Senate has contributed to the delay in the government introducing its budget, a government spokesman said Thursday.

NOWLAN H.L.

The Senate, after hearing representatives from the Canadian Exporters' Association, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and the Canadian Electrical Manufacturers' Association, adjourned its committee yesterday until next Wednesday. It is understood this was done at the request of the government so that Mr. Fleming and Mr. Nowlan could appear.

Mr. Nowlan has been in hospital, suffering from a heart attack. There is some doubt that he will have recovered sufficiently to appear before the Senate committee next week.

Delays Affect Budget

MOVE UNLIKELY

It now appears unlikely that the budget will be introduced next week. There have been persistent reports that it would be brought down on either June 6 or June 8.

On at least two occasions Mr. Fleming has suggested in the House that it would be improper to introduce his new budget before the pre-Christmas baby budget was approved by the Commons and Senate. However, government

No Crisis Expected

Indication that the U.S. is not expecting a new Caribbean crisis resulting from assassination of Rafael Trujillo was State Secretary Dean Rusk's abrupt departure from Washington yesterday to join President Kennedy after only a day's delay. See Trujillo story, Page 3.

Riot Act Threat By Police

TORONTO (AP)—New violence eddied around Toronto's five-day construction strike Thursday and police at one metropolitan municipality threatened to have the Riot Act read to roving bands of strikers forcing non-strikers off building projects.

SIX ARRESTED

Six strikers were arrested during the day, five charged with malicious damage at Leaside Presbyterian Church where men had continued to work on an addition to the building.

Police broke up a crowd of shouting, milling demonstrators at the church, where molar bins and scaffolds were overturned.

An uproarious outburst of punching, brick-throwing and club-swinging developed as almost 100 strikers swarmed through the Midland Park residential development in an attempt to drag carpenters off the job.

Strikers grabbed two-by-fours and other construction materials and used them as clubs in hand-to-hand fighting, but there were no serious injuries before a police flying squad rushed in and restored order.

The threat of the Riot Act—the traditional warning that police will take forcible action to put down mob violence—was given in suburban Scarborough.

Overland to Port Alice

PORT ALICE—For the first time in 48 years, motor vehicles are driving into this northern Vancouver Island pulp-mill town under their own power.

Traffic arrived with the opening of a four-mile road from Jeune Landing as the first step in linking the east and west coasts of the Island from Port Alice to Port McNeill and Port Hardy.

The roads are under construction by Rayonier Canada Ltd. as a joint project with the provincial government and will be open to the public in off-logging hours.

Port Alice was established in 1913 with building of a sawmill. The logging community of Jeune Landing started as a docking point for the original coast copper development in 1916.

Equal-Ante Hospital Formula Urged by Cobble Hill's Bonner

COBBLE HILL—Former school trustee George Bonner believes he has formulated a plan which would assure construction of the Cowichan District Hospital.

Mr. Bonner proposes that Duncan, North Cowichan, Lake Cowichan and Koksilah scrap their original contribution plan and adopt a new financial structure.

He thinks that each of the four districts should pay $200,000 each. The rest of the local tax should be picked up by industries and non-property owners.

UP IN AIR

At the moment the $3,655,586, 144-bed hospital is up in the air because of North Cowichan council's action to withdraw from the scheme.

However, the other three districts are still going through with the June 10 vote.

North Cowichan council decided to pull out of the project because of pressure from Chemainus General Hospital board. Council voted 3-2 to rescind its hospital contribution.

LOSE HOSPITAL

The Chemainus board objected to Westholme and Crofton being included in the Cowichan District Hospital project. Board members feel that if they lose Crofton and Westholme, they may lose their own hospital or chances of building a new structure.

Mr. Bonner said he does not like the proposed contribution formula calling for $186,334 from Duncan, $512,659 from North Cowichan, $527,960 from Lake Cowichan and $367,010 from Koksilah.

If the four areas contributed $200,000 apiece, this would raise $800,000, with "the remainder from the industries and all of the non-property owners. It would then give everyone a stake in the new hospital," Mr. Bonner said.

As for Chemainus, Mr. Bonner said this problem could be solved by North Cowichan collecting $400,000 instead of $200,000.

"The extra $200,000 could be contributed to the Chemainus Hospital for expansion purposes. In that way everyone would be happy," he said. Mr. Bonner said although he is strongly in favor of a new hospital being constructed he did not like the proposed contribution plan.

"It is not equalized for on one side we have Duncan just giving $186,000 and Koksilah $367,000. I think everyone would support the hospital if every district just contributed $200,000," he maintained.

"I offer these suggestions as constructive criticism for I would like to see this hospital built," he concluded.

New Hospital Boilers Have Room with View

NANAIMO—The new regional hospital moved another step closer to completion today but made history in doing so.

Huge boilers were installed in the hospital yesterday—but not in the basement or an adjoining building. They will operate from third floor of the five-storey structure.

Patten Poses Question:

Does Nanaimo Need Community Centre?

NANAIMO—Does Nanaimo need a community centre? This is the crux of the question according to Vancouver Island Exhibition Association past-president Laurie Patten.

Speaking at a meeting of the VIX he outlined the history of Exhibition Park, its debt and debenture situation and what he describes as the solution—a community centre that can be operated all year and not just during the summer months as most activities are at the park now.

Mr. Patten pointed out that provincial and federal grants would pay for the centre but only if it was built at Exhibition Park under the auspices of the agricultural fair.

Construction Exceeds $10,000,000

Flurry Unexpected Mostly Unexplained

Greater Victoria's unexpected and largely unexplained 1961 construction boom continued through May and pushed the year's building permit total past the $10,000,000 mark.

University Auditorium Site Urged

Gordon Head campus of Victoria University should definitely be considered as a possible site for a large Greater Victoria auditorium, according to Acting Mayor Millard Mooney.

He said there is "a good deal of merit" in a suggestion by R. B. Wilson, chairman of the university development committee, that a new auditorium should be built on the fringe of the new campus.

But he doubted that the city would take on such a project itself.

"An auditorium should be a Greater Victoria project because it will benefit the whole community," he said.

"If we can ever get together to build it I think the campus should definitely be considered as a site."

But Victoria city building permit values fell behind the record 1960 pace for the first time since January.

TOTAL VALUE

Total value of building permits for the four Greater Victoria municipalities hit $10,216,000 at the end of May, compared with $8,430,000 during the same period last year.

Saanich, Esquimalt and Oak Bay all show increased construction activity in 1961.

OVER $4,000,000

Value of May permits in Victoria fell to $539,000 this year compared with $1,375,000 in 1960. Total permits issued this year in the city are valued at $3,622,000 while at this time last year the figure was slightly over $4,000,000.

Saanich has issued close to $4,000,000 in permits in 1961 and both Esquimalt and Oak Bay are well over the $1,000,000 mark.

INCREASE

Greater Victoria is one of the few metropolitan areas in Canada to show an increase this year over 1960 construction figures.

Appeal to Residents

Royal Oak Gets Date For Mail Deliveries

Victoria post office officials have set the last week of June as the target date for the start of door-to-door mail delivery in Royal Oak.

"It all hinges on whether residents have installed proper mail slots or receptacles for delivery," a spokesman said yesterday.

He said every home in the area had been canvassed earlier and advised that the change-over was taking place. A final check will be held next week to determine whether the required percentage of homes is equipped to receive mail.

The spokesman said the required figure was 80 per cent. Then Victoria can apply for permission to institute home delivery of mail.

The change-over will also bring Royal Oak's postal rate down to the four-cent level.

100 A DAY

"We have as many as 100 letters a day at the Royal Oak post office that require payment of a further two cents. This will be a big step towards stabilizing the postal rate in the Greater Victoria area," said the post office official.

The four-cent rate will apply from Victoria to Keating Cross Road.

The switch will bring Royal Oak under the Victoria post office. The Royal Oak post office will be closed and a sub-postal station established. Two of the present three employees at Royal Oak will be moved to jobs in Victoria. The third is retiring.

NEW AREA

The postal official said a new carrier would be taken on to service the new area.

He added a warning that homeowners who have not installed mail slots or receptacles would be obliged to pick up their undelivered mail at the Victoria post office. There are about 400 houses and 12 stores in the new delivery zone.

With Training

Local Police Could Be 'Tops'

Attorney General Robert Bonner said yesterday that municipal police could reach top standards if they were trained at the Vancouver police academy.

He said the Vancouver police had excellent standards and that the training at the mainland police academy could be made available to members of other police forces.

"A cost arrangement would have to be worked out," he said.

Mr. Bonner was commenting on a call by Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele earlier this week for the provincial government to set standards for police training and advancement.

A resolution to be presented to the Union of B.C. Municipalities in September calls upon the government to:

● Give some direction as to the standards required for entry and advancement of police constables.

● Consider setting up a standardized system of training and examination of police constables.

RCMP MATTER

Mr. Bonner said the provincial government's main commitment with police was with the RCMP and that training was strictly an RCMP matter.

He said he understood some municipalities had inquired into the question of having their police train at Vancouver, but the subject was never pursued.

Most economical way of ensuring top standards in municipal police forces would be to have the officers trained at the Vancouver academy, he said.

Mr. Bonner declined to give his views on the standards of some of the smaller municipal forces.

"I'm not in a position to say anything about that," he said.

Around the Island

Schools Short of 'Specialists'

DUNCAN—Shortage of fully qualified teachers for the fall term is worrying trustees of Cowichan school district.

A. D. Jones, superintendent of schools for the district, said yesterday "the board is very concerned about the shortage for the Cowichan High School."

What trustees are looking for are the hard-to-obtain specialists such as physical education and commerce teachers and counsellors.

While the lack of teachers is being felt in the high school, Mr. Jones reports that "the elementary situation is easing off. That is because we are graduating more teachers at elementary level."

The board recently received the resignations of 18 teachers. Four are from Cowichan High School and the remainder from junior high and elementary schools.

On the other hand, the board has made tentative placements of 19 teachers but they are still on the lookout for more good teachers.

Teachers still have until the end of this month to submit their resignations. In previous years, teachers have had until July to resign.

Mr. Jones explained that many other school boards are in the same position—all looking for specialist teachers.

Trustees here are still seeking teachers for the high school. George Bonner Junior High, Mount Prevost, Quamichan, Duncan elementary, Giggons Road annex, Alexander, Bay View and Somers.

PORT ALICE—A $106,000 school construction plebiscite passed with an 85 per cent majority.

The bylaw represents the first major expansion of school facilities in Quatsino district since completion of present schools in 1954 at Port Alice and Port Hardy.

Addition of the two new classrooms and other renovations to the six-classroom Port Hardy Elementary—Senior High School will use $80,000 of the funds. Another $25,000 will provide shower rooms for the Port Alice High School gymnasium and the remainder will pay for new property and contingencies.

David Sidney McVey, Walter Dennis Coas and Henry Coas were charged following an incident some weeks ago when McVey was picked up for speeding and driving while his licence was under suspension. He later pleaded guilty to both charges and was fined a total of $50 on the two counts.

McVey and Henry Coas were also convicted Wednesday of obstructing a police officer. Each was sentenced to one month. The terms are to run concurrently with those imposed in the assault charges.

parking facilities by the province.

The committee two weeks ago voted to extend the daily hours in which a two-hour parking restriction is in effect as a result of the failure of the provincial government to add to its parking areas for civil servants' cars.

NEW LIMITS

But when council was prepared to approve the new limits the committee asked for a temporary postponement.

Ald. Michael Griffin, who originally sought the longer period of restricted parking, said yesterday there have been fresh assurances of action by the provincial public works department.

"We don't want to embarrass anyone unnecessarily and on the strength of word that something will be done within the next 30 days we have held off," he said.

He said senior officials of the department have assured the city that further parking facilities are to be provided soon.

LITTLE LONGER

Ald. Griffin said he believed residents of the area are prepared to wait a little longer for relief from parking congestion in the vicinity of the legislative buildings.

When he originally proposed tighter restrictions he said that some residents are unable to find parking spaces in front of their own homes during the daytime hours and have difficulty in receiving deliveries.

'Coon Reports Don't Mean Population Explosion

Despite the number of reports of raccoons up trees and poles this year, there hasn't been any population explosion in this section of the animal kingdom, fish and game officials indicated yesterday.

Two of the ring-tailed animals were shot by police on Hampshire in Oak Bay yesterday, and another in Beacon Hill Park. The latter had been taking a toll among ducklings in the park.

This week a 'coon caused concern in Belmont Park by getting stranded up a power pole one night, and a nearby tree the next. It evidently got clean away Wednesday night.

A few weeks ago another was shot from the top of a power pole on Richmond, and many have been killed on roads and highways.

Much of the concern displayed by humans when they see a 'coon up a pole or tree is needless, the game people said.

"If people would just go away, instead of clustering around the tree or pole, the animal would come down by itself."

"Raccoons used to be on the protected list for trapping, but the demand fell off to a point where the animal was placed on the open-season list."

"Although they're on the open-season list, they may not be shot within police municipalities except by police—and this is done only when the animal has been making costly raids, or when no other action appears possible."

Treatment Goes to Head Of Waitress in a Tizzy

Peter Bruton's Capital Notebook

CHAIN REACTION: An elderly customer walked into a city restaurant the other day, said he was feeling faint, and asked if he could have a glass of water.

A waitress went and got the water and had just returned when the elderly gentleman passed out in a faint.

This unnerved the waitress who herself became dizzy. She was led to a back booth and someone produced a glass with a couple of ounces of brandy in it. This she downed in one gulp.

The upshot was the elderly gentleman soon recovered and after a little treatment appeared none the worse for wear.

The waitress had to go home—looped!

MUTE PROTEST: A storekeeper we know invariably asks whether his customers want a small package or a large package when they ask for cigars.

Wednesday, of course, was "no-smoking day" and everyone who asked for cigars was told: "You know the government says you shouldn't smoke today."

Informed of this nearly every customer decided to buy a large package of cigars.

HITHEE AND YAWN: Victoria's Eric (Charm) yesterday won the B.C. finals of the Jaycee national oratorical contest at Penticton and will now represent the province in the Canadian finals.

Victoria Rotary Club bulletin says Ald. Geoff Edgewood is all of a twitter at the thought of accompanying May Queen Nina Holden and her attendants to the Portland Rose Festival this year.

A glance around our town these days is sure proof June is busting out all over.

Sign of summer: The Tally Ho's are back in business again.

CHUG-A-LUG JUNGLE: Cocktail bars are cocktail bars and beer parlors are beer parlors and the twain meet about 6:30 every night.

Liquor Control Board regulations force beer parlors to shut up shop for an hour's "supper break" every night but there are no such regulations governing cocktail bars.

Many drinkers don't like being regulated so they go off to a cocktail bar to spend their hour in the wilderness.

Most of these have already had too much to drink.

I guess there's nothing really wrong with a character sitting in a cocktail bar dressed in greasy overalls and a hardhat perched on his head—except that it leaves grease smudges all over the white dress of the gal who sits at the same seat after he's gone.

But there is something wrong when the same character keeps on falling off his chair or stool, uses foul language and drinks his beer straight from the bottle.

Something should be done—even if it means keeping the beer parlors open without a supper break. You can't force people who don't want to stop drinking to go home.

BRIEFLY NOTED: A letter from Theophile and Geraldine Lamarr of Monroe, Mich., asks that everyone in Victoria pray for one minute in the 24-hour period preceding the meeting of Premier Khushfiev and President Kennedy. Similar letters have gone out all over the U.S. in an attempt to aid the cause of peace.

Friend of ours is a census enumerator. He also works down at the legislature during sessions. He told us yesterday that those all-night sittings are a piece of cake compared with the job of getting people to answer census questions.

NATO Must Widen Role —Kennedy

PARIS (Reuters)—President Kennedy, in his first speech to the NATO permanent council, called on the 15-nation alliance Thursday to expand its influence throughout the world.

He also reaffirmed American defence commitments, saying the United States is "initially involved" in the destiny of Western Europe.

U.S. 'COMMITTED'

NATO and world defence problems were covered by Kennedy and President de Gaulle during more than three hours of talks in two sessions Thursday—the second day of the American president's state visit to France.

In his speech Kennedy restated the United States' "strong commitment" to the defence of Western Europe.

'MORE INTIMATE'

"We believe it vital to the security of the United States and intend to honor our commitments."

"We want to see this association become more intimate. We want to see it play an expanded and greater part throughout the world."

ALLIANCE LAUDED

Kennedy called for "new life" to be given to the Atlantic alliance which he described as forming the most powerful group of people in the world.

It was necessary to consider the changes which have taken place since NATO was set up as an anti-Communist alliance and think of other areas in the world where increased pressures were being brought to bear.

PLEDGE OFFERED

Although Kennedy, in his talks with de Gaulle, did not approve the French president's bid for a three-power strategy board, U.S. officials said de Gaulle probably would get the substance of his request without the formation of a new organizational setup.

Kennedy's advisers were prepared for de Gaulle to ask for a stronger voice in world affairs and had been working on the problem for several days. U.S. officials said what Kennedy offered was a pledge to consult closely before taking major action anywhere on matters involving the East-West struggle.

What de Gaulle did not get was complete acceptance of

NO PAY INCREASE AS IWA SETTLES

Health, Welfare Cover Promised

VANCOUVER (CP)—Representatives of 150 British Columbia coast logging firms and 28,000 woodworkers agreed Thursday on proposed terms for a new contract which would introduce industry-wide health and welfare coverage, but contain no general pay increase.

The proposed one-year agreement would leave the present $1.32 basic hourly wage unchanged except for firemen and engineers, who would receive increases ranging from 4% to 10 cents an hour.

BREAKTHROUGH

President Joe Morris of International Woodworkers of America (IWA) described the proposed agreement as "a major breakthrough."

He said the union bargaining committee would recommend that the men accept the proposals in a ballot which will be held at the various coast logging centres between now and June 17.

134 COMPANIES

Representatives of Forest Industrial Relations said they would recommend acceptance to the 134 member companies involved.

The industry-wide health and welfare plan would provide for medical service during layoffs, a weekly indemnity and life insurance as well as accidental death and dismemberment insurance, a union statement said.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES

It would be administered by a board of trustees and premiums would be borne equally by employer and employee.

The proposed agreement also would provide for an extra paid holiday, at Easter in logging camps and Boxing Day in manufacturing plants. Employment of casual workers would be confined to weekends and preference would be given to laid-off regular employees.

Other features include new procedure for fixing rates for new and revised jobs, revised arbitration procedure and provision for promotion within the bargaining unit.

The proposed health and welfare plan provisions make membership a condition of employment. Coverage for medical services would be provided for a period of up to six months during unemployment, depending on seniority.

JUNE 14

The present agreement, negotiated during a 10-week strike two years ago, expires June 14. The strike resulted in a 20-cent increase in the hourly wage over the two-year contract period.

Engineers Find Solution To Salmon-Power Problem

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia can have both fish and power from its fast-flowing river systems, the Engineering Institute of Canada was told yesterday.

Papers presented at the institute's annual meeting indicated that the baffling problem of building power dams and at the same time allowing salmon to get to their spawning grounds, has at last reached a stage of solution.

INCREASE SEEN

The papers indicated, too, that with proper measures the salmon yield can be substantially increased. At the same time, continued and increased research was urged.

Val Gwyther, Vancouver consulting engineer, stated:

"The present policy of retardation of power development in a watershed, due to our inability to produce the answer to beneficial fish migration, is in the past, and these watersheds now are open to development of both fish and power."

'NO DOUBT'

There is no doubt, Mr. Gwyther said, that we now can produce salmon species in great quantities, jointly with other resource values, and with economy.

Mr. Gwyther's paper went at length into the problems of fish propagation. Rearing capacities of natural and impounded lakes should be utilized by artificial fertilization and incubation of eggs to give a yield far in excess of that from natural spawning grounds.

SOCKEYE YIELD SEEN

Taking as an example the clearwater watershed, a tributary of the North Thompson River, where no sockeye now exists, Mr. Gwyther estimated a possible yearly sockeye value to fishermen of $22,000,000 which with estimated power value, would give the watershed a total economic value of some $32,000,000 annually.

Another paper presented yesterday while less immediately optimistic, stated:

"It is very likely that further research will show that the Fraser and other rivers in British Columbia can be developed for multi-purposes."

CONCEPTS REVISED

This paper, by J. F. Muir and Eugen Ruus of the University of B.C.'s civil engineering department, added: "Recent research has caused a drastic revision of concepts that have prevailed during the last 30 years on the fish passage problem, especially on the exhaustion of adult fish caused by steepness and height of ladders."

"It now appears that fish passage through ladders can be made relatively easy."

It added: "Many British Columbia power sites can be developed to produce hydroelectric energy at costs a kilowatt hour substantially less than the cost of atomic energy."

"Development of the Fraser River system is a logical next step after the Columbia in providing large blocks of power that will be needed in the future."

De Gaulle Reassured On West Berlin Issue

By BOB MCKEW
(Canadian Press)

The Paris meeting between President Kennedy and President de Gaulle may have a greater effect on the future of the Western alliance than at first appears.

The first encounter of the two presidents was on a most cordial note and apparently produced agreement on the West Berlin issue which may come up at talks between Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev in Vienna this weekend.

French anxiety that the Russians may launch a new move against the Western position in Berlin is behind Kennedy's stand — meant to leave no doubt in Khrushchev's mind about the determination of the Western powers to defend their interests in that city.

The United States president reinforced the Western stand by promising that American troops will remain in Europe as long as they are required, ready to meet any threat with whatever response is needed.

This promise should make the understanding between de Gaulle and Kennedy a little clearer. A possible U.S. decision to withdraw its troops rather than risk a nuclear war has been partly responsible for de Gaulle's insistence on providing France with her own atomic striking force.

TRUCKY PROBLEM

But the agreement on Berlin and the American promise to keep its force in Europe were among the least touchy items of business. A more tricky problem is the one that divides de Gaulle's France from her Western allies.

It will be difficult to make NATO more effective unless France can be persuaded to play a more co-operative role in the alliance. France is the chief force in the way of a fully inter-dependent NATO.

Fleming, Nowlan to Air Tariff Bill in Senate

Special to the Colonist

OTTAWA — Finance Minister Donald Fleming and Minister of National Revenue George Nowlan are scheduled to appear before the Senate banking and commerce committee next week to explain the government's Customs Tariff Bill.

The delay in the passage of the bill through the House and the Senate has contributed to the delay in the government introducing its budget, a government spokesman said Thursday.

NOWLAN ILL

The Senate, after hearing representatives from the Canadian Exporters' Association, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and the Canadian Electrical Manufacturers' Association, adjourned its committee yesterday until next Wednesday. It is understood this was done at the request of the government so that Mr. Fleming and Mr. Nowlan could appear.

Mr. Nowlan has been ill in hospital suffering from a heart attack. There is some doubt that he will have recovered sufficiently to appear before the Senate committee next week.

MOVE UNLIKELY

It now appears unlikely that the budget will be introduced next week. There have been persistent reports that it would be brought down on either June 6 or June 8.

On at least two occasions Mr. Fleming has suggested in the House that it would be improper to introduce his new budget before the pre-Christmas baby budget was approved by the Commons and Senate. However, government spokesmen said Thursday that there was no legal reason why the budget could not be introduced before all provisions of the baby budget were approved by both Houses.

SECOND READING

But it is understood that the government is reluctant to introduce the main budget until the Customs Tariff Bill has at least been passed out of the Senate banking and commerce committee. It has received second reading in the Senate.

Last month in the House Mr. Fleming denied there had been any delay in bringing down his main budget. He noted that the last budget had not yet passed all phases of the parliamentary procedure.

The next day in the House Mr. Fleming in reply to another Opposition question said he did not know of any precedent for the introduction of a budget when there was one measure of the previous budget still waiting final enactment.

Church Merger Urged

TORONTO (CP)—Delegates from more than 400 United Church congregations called Thursday for union with the 190,581-member Presbyterian Church in Canada.

Toronto Conference of the United Church of Canada, representing more than one-third of the church's 1,616,876 members, approved without debate a resolution urging the church's general council to formally invite the Presbyterians to consider plans for a merger.

The move would heal a split created in 1925, when Methodist, Congregational and most Presbyterian churches combined to form the United Church.

Both churches are currently engaged in general discussions on unity with the Anglican Church.

No Crisis Expected

Indication that the U.S. is not expecting a new Caribbean crisis resulting from an assassination of Rafael Trujillo was State Secretary Dean Rusk's abrupt departure from Washington yesterday to join President Kennedy after only a day's delay. See Trujillo story, Page 3.

Riot Act Threat By Police

TORONTO (AP)—New violence eddied around Toronto's five-day construction strike Thursday and police of one metropolitan municipality threatened to have the Riot Act read to roving bands of strikers forcing non-strikers off building projects.

SIX ARRESTED

Six strikers were arrested during the day, five charged with malicious damage at the Leaside Presbyterian Church where men had continued to work on an addition to the building.

Police broke up a crowd of shouting, milling demonstrators at the church, where mortar bins and scaffolds were overturned.

An uproarious outburst of punching, brick-throwing and club-swinging developed as almost 100 strikers swarmed through the Midland Park residential development in an attempt to drag carpenters off the job.

Strikers grabbed two-by-fours and other construction materials and used them as clubs in hand-to-hand fighting, but there were no serious injuries before a police flying squad rushed in and restored order.

The threat of the Riot Act (the traditional warning that police will take forcible action to put down mob violence) was given in suburban Scarborough.

Yarrows Linked With Soviet Deal

The Victoria shipyard and industrial steel fabricating firm of Yarrows Ltd. was named by two Seattle firms yesterday as being involved in a Russian order for what would be the world's largest automated sawmill.

John A. Wallace, general manager of Yarrows, said although it is true his firm was negotiating with the Seattle companies, "we are not the principals in this particular arrangement" and "there is no comment I can make."

The Seattle firms turned down a $150,000 order for six of the latest type of automatic lumber-sorting machines because they would go to Russia.

The presidents of the two companies said Russia was trying to buy North American technical know-how in building the world's largest automated sawmill "and we will have no part in handing this advantage to our sworn enemy."

They said the Russians are 20 years behind the new lumber-handling techniques recently developed and put into operation in Washington state.

Gordon B. Anderson of Puget Sound Fabricators, Inc., said his firm was approached last Friday by representatives of Yarrows and the Preston Woodworking Machinery Company Ltd. of Preston, Ont., with the Preston firm "originating" the order.

SUB-CONTRACTING

"Yarrows was a party to the situation like we were" in that they were not the originators of the deal but would merely do sub-contracting, said Mr. Anderson.

The automated sawmill, costing millions of dollars, would be capable of handling 1,500,000 board feet a day, he said, adding that he understands Canadians may have a different at-
